Kiachow Port, Whose Stormy Career

After 24 Years of Alien Rule, Falls
Into Hands of Chinese Bandits

TIEN TSIN, China, Dec. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Reports received here say that Chinese bandits have taken control of Tsingtao, Shantung, the Kiachow port whose stormy career in war and diplomacy, was to culminate today in its return to China after twenty-four years of alien rule, the first 16 under Germany and the last eight under Japan.
The population is reported fleeing from the city.

Trains from Tsingtao are said to be crowded with refugees. Chinese police sent to take over the city are reported to have been driven out of their barracks.

Bandits Demand $100,000 Ransom

The bandits, according to the telegrams, demand $100,000 ransom for the delivery of government officials and police in their hands. The outlaws also hold out for the appointment of their chief as governor of the port.

Shops and residences are being looted nightly, the despatches say. The 20,000 Japanese who remain in Tsing-tao unorganized for defending the city.

DEFENSE OBJECTS TO INTRODUCTION OF TALBOT MILLS TIME SHEETS

Court Finally Admits Records Saying That He Believed They Were Made in Good Faith—Perrigo Says His Feelings Towards His Wife at Present
Are "Very Affectionate"

A most stubborn battle was waged in superior court this morning between counsel in the case of Elmer E. Perrigo, who is seeking to obtain from Edgar P. Twombly $25,000 for alleged alienation of his wife's affections, over some records of time sheets taken at the Talbot mills last July. Counsel for both sides fought every issue introduced regarding the records and this was followed by a lengthy conference with the court. It was finally decided to admit as evidence the records, which appear to be an important factor in the plaintiff's case.

The case of the records has to do with the time Miss Ella Whitehead worked in the Talbot mills on the 26th of last July. Miss Whitehead has been named as having been in a local hotel with Mr. Twombly on July 25, giving him medical attention. The plaintiff seeks to show by the records that Miss Whitehead was at work in the Talbot mills at the time the defense claims she was in Lowell.

The paymaster of the mill was brought in to testify. He was an overseer and two clerks of the mill who had dealings with the time sheets. Atty. Hogan, for the defense, objected to the records going in on the ground that they were not the original copies. Judge Cox finally ruled that he believed the records were made in good faith and that they should be admitted. The plain-tiff's counsel has intimated that great stress will be placed upon what the records show.

At one time during the trial today
Mr. Perrigo was asked what were his feelings towards his wife at present.

Gov. Allen Says Business of Being Labor Leader "a Great Industry"

Declares There Are 150,000
Paid Secretaries of War
Working for Unions

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 5.—Gov.
Henry J. Allen of Kansas, speaking before the National Presbyterian Laymen's conference advocated the industrial court law and criticized labor agitators and "paid strike leaders."
The business of being a labor leader, he asserted, is "a great industry."

"There are 150,000 paid secretaries of war," he asserted, "working for the unions. They drain the labor organizations of $60,000,000 every year.
They naturally oppose the industrial court because they live on labor warfare. They are afraid of the Kansas industrial court."

William Hiram Poulkes, of New York, general secretary of the New York movement of the Presbyterian church, declared "what it takes generals to write into our constitution an alien rabble shall not destroy."

Turkey and Europe Drift Far Apart on Great Issues of Near East Conference

Pessimists See Complete Collapse of Pour Parlers and Resumption of War

LAUSANNE, Dec. 5.—(By the Associated Press) Turkey and Europe have apparently drifted so far apart on the great issues of the Near East conference that the pessimists have a fruitful field for unhappy prognostications of a complete collapse of the pour parlers and the resumption of war in southeastern Europe.

Such a culmination of the conference—discussion could easily be argued as a strong possibility, but any such argument based on a reasonable hypothesis would leave out the fact that Europe needs peace and that Turkey has constantly proclaimed her need for building up international peace.

Woman Under Sentence of

Saws Bars, Climbs Through

Building and Disappears

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—Clara Phillips climbed out of a window in the women's section of the county jail and escaped today. She was under a sentence of 10 years to life imprisonment, after conviction of the hammer murder of Alberta Meadows. She was held in the jail pending formulation of an appeal.

With the aid of several street saws her escape was effected at 2 a. m., according to a report to the sheriff by the jailer. Relief was expressed that she had been aided by other inmates.
Hair was sawed through and after crawling out the window, she dropped to the roof of an adjoining building, climbed down the fire escape, and disappeared.

The escape was not discovered by jail authorities for several hours. The matron in making rounds, saw the bed in Mrs. Phillips' cell vacant. The matron then discovered the sawed and twisted bars, and notified the jailer.

Forty-eight count 'em—students of the blizzards of 1921 in good shape and passed a few new records on their

LONDON, Dec. 5. (By the Associa-the Irish Free State will come into being after midnight tonight.

By a special order in council, the full administration of the country already has been handed over to the provisional government. Therefore, when the constitution comes into ex-today lacked only the formal assent of

Short Subjects Introduce New Ideas for Photoplays

LADY DIANA MANNERS (LEFT) WAS KNOWN AS ENGLAND'S MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN BEFORE SHE ENTERED THE MOVIES. KATHERINE MACDONALD ENTERED THE MOVIES AND THEN WAS ACCLAIMED BY MANY AS AMERICA'S GREATEST BEAUTY.

By JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The short-subject films point the way to the future photoplays. The two-reel comic has always been in advance of the multiple-reel photoplay in the development of a distinctive form of expression. Now other short films, such as comedies, animated drawings and police comedies, are showing more originality in subject and treatment than the biggest films.

These remarks arise from several hours devoted to previewing some new short subjects. Each film shows in a new series of one-reelers what novel effects can be gained with a combination of animated drawings and photography. I saw "Railroading," that is a whimsical tale of a boy and dog as his netors. These figures cut-up in a toy train and a real cat and a little chicken become involved in the plot.

At first this all seemed utter nonsense, but on reflection it appears that Hurd put himself in the attitude of a little child and wrote a tale such as might be sketched on the walls of a nursery. It is a beautiful bit of imagery when considered in that light.

Max Fleischer in his "Out of the Inkwell" series employs the same scheme and is a bit more adroit with his work than Hurd. However, he doesn't look at the picture he creates through the eyes of a child.

Robert Bruce also resorts to the fancies of a story-teller in "A Natural Born liar," the latest of a series. In this he introduces beautiful panoramas by having a nomad of the north tell about his various adventures.

Thus the camera shows a mirage of the desert, a lake in which the smallest trout is two feet nine inches long and an ocean in the mountains. The last episode presents the upper surface of a mighty cloud which breaks upon a mountain side like the ocean upon a rocky shore. These series of nature in unusual circumstances appear stranger than fiction, but Bruce introduces deftly to the story. The traveler visits a "blind spot" in the woods, in this spot everything becomes invisible in broad daylight.

Critics in England have acclaimed such Bruce pictures as these as the most artistic yet produced in America. Baby Peggy is being starred in a series of fairy-stories, the latest of which is "Little Red Riding Hood." I have not seen this film, but I have seen Baby Peggy and I've read "Little Red Riding Hood" several times. The film promises something far different than has yet been screened. It should suggest to some producer the filming of "Alice in Wonderland" in a very pretentious manner. That story could be better told on a screen than in a book. It would give the screen ample opportunity to show the vast descriptive powers of the camera. It would make a more unique film than "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari."

LOOMFIXERS' UNION

There was a large attendance at last evening's meeting of the Loomfixers' union, which was held in Trades & Labor hall, Central street. President J. B. Jernery occupied the chair and routine business was transacted. It was announced that the nomination of officers will take place at the next meeting and that the election will be held at the last meeting in December.

feelings towards his wife at the present time. He replied that they were very affectionate.

It was brought out that on one occasion Perrigo was nailed inside of a piano box, which was placed upon an auto truck, and that he followed Mrs. Perrigo about in the depot section of the city, observing her movements through holes that had been bored in the box.

The session today was replete with conferences on the bench. The defense took repeated objections to the methods of the plaintiff's counsel with the result that the trial was delayed a great deal. According to present indications the trial will not be finished before tomorrow at the earliest. The case of the records brought out many heated exchanges between counsel. Yesterday Paymaster Richardson of the Tailor mill was put on the stand and he testified that he had custody of the pay sheets since the time they were taken.

James H. Roule, an overman in the mill, testified today that he took the time Miss Isabella Chambers, one of Mr. Roule's clerks, testified that she copied the time sheet under the direction of Mr. Roule.

The question of admitting the records as responsible for a delay in the trial as it was necessary for the court to make many references to the law on the subject of admitting records. The defense counsel contended that the defendant was entitled to have the original records produced. The court said he thought the records had been made in good faith and that they should be allowed in.

He cited as an example: "If I was on trial for my life and factory records were introduced to show I was working at the time a crime was committed, do you mean to say the records would not be in my favor?" Attorney Hogan, who is conducting the case at the present, replied the records would be in favor, but then brought up the questions of the original records. It was pointed out that the original records were never kept, but that the times were transcribed from originals to a form sheet.

The court finally admitted the records, saying that he believed the entries were made in good faith. Exceptions were taken, the court saving the defendant's rights.

Mr. Roule was then put back on the stand and was cross-examined by Atty. Hogan. Mr. Roule described, minutely, his duties in the mill. The witness said that without referring to the records, he wouldn't want to say that Miss Whitehead wasn't out for an hour on the afternoon of July 25.

Piano Box For Blind

James F. Kelly, a junk collector, was the next witness. He gave testimony of a most unusual kind. He said he was fixing a tire on Middlesex street when Perrigo came up and asked him if he wanted to do some work for him.

Kelly said that Perrigo asked him to get a piano box as a woman was coming to the city that he wanted to watch. He then testified that a piano box was obtained, taken to a barn and two holes bored in the side of it by means of a file and hammer. This took place on August 1, the day on which Mrs. Perrigo and Twombly were found in a local hotel.

According to the witness, Perrigo was placed in the piano box and the cover nailed on. The truck was then driven down to the railroad station. There Mrs. Perrigo was seen getting off a train. The truck was then detailed to follow Mrs. Perrigo. No questions were asked by the plaintiff. Sergeant Philip Dwyer was put on the stand, and he was asked if anyone had called Mr. Twombly a liar at the hotel on August 4. The question was objected to and the objection sustained. Atty. Rogers withdrew the question.

Mr. Perrigo was again called to the stand. The following questions and answers followed.

A—"I came back to Billerica."
Q—"What did you do then?"

HELD BIG CELEBRATION

St. Elizabeth Branch of Irish National Foresters Observe Second Anniversary

A well attended meeting of unusual interest, followed by a social and dance tendered to members and their friends, marked the celebration of the second anniversary of the St. Elizabeth Branch of the Irish National Foresters in A.O.U.F. hall last evening. Chief Ranger Margaret McManis presided at the meeting. Three new members were initiated and an equal number of applications for membership received and accepted. A communication, requesting the presence of seven delegates to represent the branch at the St. Patrick's day convention on Dec. 17, was received from the local United Irish societies, but action on this was deferred until the next quarterly meeting.

The social consisted mainly of dancing, in which a large number of friends who were invited for the occasion, participated. Mrs. J. J. O'Connell was well represented and materially assisted in the arrangements. A feature of the evening was an exhibition of Irish step dancing by Sisters McGovern and Shaugnessy, and Miss Ellen Murnighan and Mrs. McManis. During an intermission in the program, a mystery package, donated by Mrs. Mary Duffrey, created much amusement.

Free chances for the package were distributed throughout the hall and the holder of the lucky number was Miss Margaret Handley. The mysterious prize, when revealed, turned out to be a pair of gent's hose imported from Ireland. Dancing was again resumed and continued until midnight.

The success of the affair was due in a large measure to the efforts of Miss Maria Markham, who had charge of the entertainment. Other socials are being planned to follow future meetings of the organization.

UNUSUAL SITUATION IN AUTO ACCIDENT

AUTO ACCIDENT

While driving his automobile through Adams street on November 29, Vincent K. Reardon of 36 Bradley street, Somerville, struck a little girl, who, he claims, ran from the sidewalk into the path of his machine. The child, who did not seem to be injured, ran away, but Reardon ran after her and caught her and attempted to take her to the hospital, but the little girl fought and kicked and managed to get away without making herself known. Reardon, nothing could be done Reardon then continued his trip and forgot the incident.

Now as a result of the accident, Reardon is being threatened with criminal action for failure to report the accident, and accordingly has and his counsel write a letter to Supl. Atkinson of the local police department, setting forth the circumstances surrounding the accident and his reasons for not reporting. The letter to the superintendent, which has been written by William J. Shahan, a Boston attorney, is as follows:

I wish to notify you on behalf of Vincent K. Reardon of 36 Bradley street, Somerville, that on November 29, 1922, at about 4 o'clock, while driving in his Ford touring car on Adams street, a little girl ran out from the sidewalk and into his automobile. The child, who was about 10 years of age, was running away from him, and he followed her and caught her and attempted to take her to the hospital, but the little girl fought and kicked against him taking her and upon being set back on the ground she ran away, disappearing through an alleyway. Mr. Reardon followed in an effort to determine her identity, but lost sight of her.

To all appearances the child was uninjured, and he then drove home. He has just received a letter claiming injuries to the child and setting forth the possibility of a criminal action due to failure to report the accident.

I am, therefore, writing you, setting forth the facts as they lay. In Mr. Reardon's mind as explaining the absence of a report by him to your department.

ARRESTED IN BOSTON

Man Arrested by Capt. Petrie is Charged With $1100 Furniture Larceny

Charged with the larceny of $1100 worth of furniture from a local store, Benny Alba of Boston was arrested by Captain David Petrie of the local criminal bureau and Inspector Connolly of the Boston force in a pool room in the Hub yesterday afternoon and brought to Lowell to face the charge. The furniture was stolen from a Lowell firm on Nov. 15 in a most peculiar manner. A young man went to the store and presented the manager a card and letter of recommendation stating that he was desiring up house-keeping and wished to buy a few sets of furniture and pay on the installment plan. The total bill came to $1200, but a $200 cash payment reduced that figure to $1000.

The fellow gave his name as Frank Barton of 7 Colwell avenue, this city, and the newly purchased furniture was delivered to that address. That was the last seen or heard of "Barton" until his arrest yesterday. When the installment man went to collect further payment, he found the house at 7 Colwell avenue deserted and the furniture gone.

The police were notified and Captain Petrie assigned to investigate. His inquiries led to Boston and a pool room on North street, where Alba was located, arrested and brought to Lowell. A police court this morning he pleaded not guilty and was released in bonds of $2000 for his appearance on Dec. 12.

TENEMENT BLOCK IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

The tenement block at 525-526 Merrimack street and owned by Coram Hall was damaged by fire in the forenoon. Fire started in the hot water tank closet on the top floor of the building. In the late afternoon by George Coram and family and worked its way through the roof.

When the blaze was discovered an alarm was sent in from box 1, and when the firemen reached the premises a portion of the roof was ablaze. Several lines of chemical were laid and after coping with the flames for about half an hour, the firemen succeeded in putting out the last spark, but not before ripping considerable of the ceiling in the kitchen, dining room and bed room.

Mrs. Coram stated that members of the family had been smelling smoke since Sunday, but no trace of fire could be located. This morning she heard the cracking of lumber and upon investigation found a lively blaze in the water tank closet. District Chief Sullivan, who directed the work of the firemen stated that in his opinion the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion.

MRS. OBENCHAIN FREED

Indictments Against Arthur C. Burch and Mrs. Obenchain Dismissed

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—Indictments against Arthur C. Burch and Madeline Obenchain, charged with the murder of J. Ballou Kennedy, young Los Angeles broker, were dismissed yesterday by Judge John W. Sheneck on motion of District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine.

Mr. Woolwine moved dismissal of the indictments on the ground of insufficient evidence.

Paul Sheneck, attorney for Burch, then swore out an insanity complaint against his client and Judge Sheneck directed that he be committed to the psychiatric ward of the county hospital for observation.

The court's action left Mrs. Obenchain free to leave the county jail, which she announced she would do immediately.

She said she planned to leave Los Angeles but did not intend to go very far away.

WILL NOT VOTE TO APPROVE CLAIM

As chairman of the committee on claims of the city council, Seth J. Adams said today he would never vote to approve any claim in any amount submitted to the city as a settlement of the old and famous Hassan paying royalty suit, recently disposed in the federal court for $250.

Councilor Adams' interest in the case is two-fold, and dates back 12 or more years, when he was a member of the board of aldermen. At that time he launched an investigation of the proposal of the Hassan Co. to collect so many cents in royalties for every square yard of Hassan paying land in Lowell and was directly responsible for blocking any such payments by the city.

"I notice Mayor Brown is attempting to take credit for blocking payment at that time," said Mr. Adams today, "but if any credit is due it belongs to me." The councilor backed up his assertion by producing newspaper clippings of long ago, telling of his activities in the matter.

"I understand the case has been disposed of with a settlement of $250 to the Hassan company," continued Councilor Adams, "I suppose the demand will come before the city in form of a claim, but as chairman of the claims committee, there is not a chance of its being approved for payment. Why should the city settle for even $250?" he asked. "There is no liability and never has been."

With those few pertinent remarks the councilor put his clippings back inside his pocket and closed the interview.

FINE AT NABNASSETT

A portion of the large shed on the George C. Moore farm on the shores of Nabnassett pond in West Chelmsford as well as a number of farming tools were destroyed by fire last evening. When the blaze was discovered at about 9 o'clock by Richard Buxley, manager of the farm, the five departments from West and North Chelmsford as well as Westford were summoned and it was only through hard work that the firefighters succeeded in saving a portion of the shed as well as the dance pavilion, which is to be built directly across the road. The origin of the fire is unknown and the loss is said to be covered by insurance.

Mrs. Davidson Tells How She Recovered from a Condition Caused by Thin Blood

Many women suffer from headaches, nervousness and a general run-down condition because they do not keep their blood rich and red. Thin blood is the cause of much suffering that could easily be avoided for it is possible to build up the blood by the use of proper tonic treatment, good food and sunshine.

When the blood is built up many symptoms such as disturbed digestion, chills and sleeplessness often disappear quickly for the rich blood carries life and health to every part of the body.

"I was in a very nervous condition," says Mrs. Frank Davidson, of No. 139 Broad street, Auburn, Me., "and all ways felt tired. There were times when I could not sleep and I would get up in the morning all worn out. I had severe headaches and dizzy spells. My appetite was poor and after eating I had pains in my stomach. My blood was thin, I was always cold and had pains in my back. I did not get any better until on the recommendation of a friend who had been helped by them, I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I felt better in a few days and kept on until I had used two boxes. Now I feel better than I have in many years. My blood is rich and I am much stronger. The pains, headaches and dizziness are all gone. My digestion is good and I sleep and eat well. I am glad to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone needing a tonic."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are useful in anemia, or thin blood, nervousness and its more aggravated forms of sick headache, neuralgia, sciatica and neuritis. They give new strength and vigor and if you need this tonic you should get a 60-cent box from your nearest druggist today and begin the treatment.

Cuts Its Financial Resources

made it plain that the 103 temporary employees laid off last Saturday should return to work today and that for the balance of the year the departments coming under the board of public service will operate with a total personnel of upwards of 500 men.

While the street department was handsomely rewarded, the school department received only half of the amount it previously had said it would absolutely require to meet payrolls of teachers. The payroll that falls due on the 8th, tomorrow, will be met, due on the 8th, Friday, will be met, ability to escape a municipal deficit at the end of the year even though every dime of December revenue is used to balance accounts.

Pass Back to Auditor Martin

The burden has been passed along to the city auditor to make ends meet somehow. December may produce $40,000 in receipts, but the most scores of departments clamoring for more money and with the school department only half cared for, there will be losses somewhere.

In its deliberations last night the finance committee did not consider any money not actually available in cash, but after it had voted to recommend the appropriation of $135,000, thus wiping out the excess receipts and dipping deep into prior revenue, it said, "Now, we will pass an order instructing the city auditor to balance accounts at the end of the year wherever he finds it necessary."

"Balance accounts with what?" asked City Auditor Daniel E. Martin, and no one could solve the little riddle.

Prior to the meeting nearly 20 departments had presented estimates of money needed to piece out the year, but with $36,000 going to streets and $40,000 to schools, the others were left out in the cruel world to shuffle along somehow, unaided and alone.

The meeting was attended by President Patrick J. Bagley of the council and Councilors Gallagher, McPadden, Moriarty, Chretien, Queenan, Mayor George H. Brown, Dennis J. Murphy, chairman of the public service board and Councilor Smith J. Adams, representing the claims committee.

The nub of the meeting was the group of 100-odd men laid off in the street department Saturday. Every one wanted to see them return to work. Chairman Murphy said they would be reinstated next Monday providing the council voted the necessary money at the meeting Thursday night of this week. Councilor Queenan asked why they couldn't go back today and get their money later.

"That is satisfactory to me," said Mr. Murphy, "so long as I get assurance the money will be forthcoming."

"We will get the money all right," said Mayor Brown.

"There is no doubt of that," commented President Bagley, "the councilors are all up for reelection just as you are, Mr. Mayor."

It was 5:45 o'clock when the committee was called into session.

Meeting in Detail

Before any individual department was considered, Councilor Gallagher asked how much money as a whole is available.

City Auditor Daniel E. Martin said as of Dec. 1, the prior revenue account stands at $24,318.69 and excess receipts amount to $46,555.57. These are the only resources available at the present time. He spoke of surplus, but the committee did not care to consider this source.

To the total amount available from prior revenue and excess receipts, $139,904.26 may be added $40,000 in anticipated receipts in December.

Councilor Gallagher suggested that the discussion be confined to only the actual amount of money available, thus leaving out the anticipated revenue of $40,000.

Mayor Brown expressed the belief that many departments actually do not need more money at this time, although he felt streets, schools and charity departments should be given immediate consideration.

In speaking of the street department the mayor said enough money should be voted to allow it to function with a complete working force, as of last Saturday, for the balance of the year.

Chairman Murphy speaks for Board

Dennis J. Murphy, chairman of the board of public service, appeared before the committee as spokesman for his board.

He explained that there has been a reduction in the working force of the departments under control of the board simply and solely because retrenchment was necessary with money available.

He stated that from all available sources the board of public service has in cash $26,422.68, with bills outstanding against the street department amounting to $67,555.52, leaving a debit, if all available cash is used toward meeting this total obligation, of $41,132.84.

Mr. Murphy stated further that if 400 men are employed from now to Jan. 1, $48,000 will be needed to pay them and if 600 are employed, $60,000 will be needed.

"Give us $81,000," he said, "and we will maintain a payroll of 600 men, and meet all our obligations."

Chairman Bagley immediately favored this amount.

Mr. Murphy stated further that with $56,000, December bills also will be paid.

Each member of the committee then went on record as favoring this latter amount.

Mr. Murphy asked when the money will be available and he was told the council will pass the order Thursday night and the money will be ready for use on Friday morning.

It was brought out that all the temporary men laid off Saturday would be taken back next Monday and kept at work for the balance of the month, or until Jan. 1.

Councilor Queenan asked whether the men could not go back to work Tuesday and get their money later.

Chairman Murphy said he was willing to send the men back at once, with the assurance that the money will be forthcoming by vote of the council Thursday night.

Will There Be Work to Do?

Councilor Gallagher asked Mr. Murphy if there will be work enough for the men to do.

"We will try to find some," he replied.

A stretch in West Sixth street, between Coburn and West streets, was spoken of and it was decided that asphalt will be laid there, weather permitting.

Chairman Murphy said the board will not take the responsibility of asphalt laid in December, but would authorize, providing the city engineer gives his opinion in writing that it will be satisfactory.

With $96,000 going to the board of public service, there remained $43,904.26 in available cash.

School Department Needs

The school department next was considered. It was stated $85,000 would be needed for payrolls alone.

It was decided $10,000 would be recommended for the school department, leaving $39,904.26 in available cash.

Any shortages that may occur in other departments will be left to the auditor to meet with whatever money is available at the end of the year. The auditor will proceed under a blanket order "to balance accounts."

IN SALEM BY THE SEA

Many Interesting Items Culled
From Salem Paper Published in 1826

Old Salem days of long ago when clippers sailed the four seas and came home to port with tidings of world news and laden with merchandise that reeked with the perfume of rare spices of the Orient and India and sunny Mediterranean Isles, are brought to mind in an ancient newspaper just recovered from the dusty archives of a Lowell homestead and kindly loaned The Sun for perusal.

When the Essex Register—four dollars per annum and no papers discontinued until arrears are paid—rattled off the forty-first number of Vol. XXVI down on Essex street opposite the old Merchants' bank in Fair Salem, Mass., on May 22, 1826, Leghorn bonnets, striped Circassians, Denmark satins, black and blue twilled Bombazettes, striped Jeans and Wilmington stripes were all the rage for summer wear in the old Bay State.

And the Essex Register was Dame Fashion's leading arbiter on new styles as well as favorite newspaper in the Salem of the day. Head stories and snoring matters' wrangles made somewhat famous by our eminent young American novelist, Joseph Hedges.

A well known Lowell citizen, Prof. Frederic Bond, has just received for safekeeping an excellently preserved copy of the old Salem newspaper that was some newspaper in the days of 1826, before and afterward. It is a curious little shop all by itself, although the old-fashioned type is so fine that you have to use a magnifying glass if you want to read it closely.

Poetry occupies first page prominent position, col. 3. There is a deathless epic by one "Alfred," sex unknown, in which on May 2, 1826, named a tribute to J. Hedges of the "burning wheels." Plentiful of the "burning wheels," fairly dealt shafts of death-defying words to the raging winds in this dish of verse that also involves thunder-clouds, icy shores of Greenland and several other places where thermometers are unnecessary.

Down the column, a sonnet to "Mary" taken bodily from "The Literary Digest" (no relation to The Literary Digest) flows gently just like "Sweet Afton" or the upper reaches of the Narragansett on a July afternoon. Mary is likened to a light breeze spreading its wings over the "celestial billows"—accent on the "b" in "celestial." The poem winds up gracefully: "And I were blest if thou wert here." "Boston Bard" comes to bid in the third stanza close to bottom of col. 3, page 1, with an invocation to "The Great and Good" ending his lay with the frank statement that "Love and wine floats freedom's ark today."

Departing from the poetry corner, the news of the "latest news from Europe" dated April 18 in the issue of May 22. The Turks were fighting the Greeks in those days, too, and the Register has word that a Greek fortress had been taken and the Greeks "put to the sword." Just like what we read about the other day over in Asia Minor. And war was very old indeed in the Near East in 1826, at that!

In the senate at Washington, river bills and harbor improvements were still in fashion, everybody wanting money from Uncle Sam for various purposes in order to strengthen political fences just as usual right now. The "pols" were interested, too, in many "new public buildings" for Uncle Sam—and the "deer heap"—back 100 years ago, with bills galore for "public improvements" with congressmen and senators having two fingers a piece in each fat-frosted appropriation pie.

Distress was reported in many manufacturing centers of England, thousands of women and their families being dependent upon public charity, as is the case today in the British Isles. Salem business men incorporated a new "mill dam corporation," and the medical men of the town were studying a brand of new imported leeches for use in surgical work.

Popular fancy turned to the new "circuit and riding school" opened May 2, 1826, in South Salem. Ipswich's "classical seminary" was flourishing, with Herry Wilbur, principal, and fathers and mothers carefully assured that the young daughters would be nicely protected at all times at Ipswich "with reasonable expectation."

The bed post business in Salem was something thrillingly worth while in 1826, too. Kimball & Sargent, experts in bed posts, having a fine line of

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $5, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home. In a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

PLENTY OF GOLD ON TAP FOR CHRISTMAS

The Christmas givers who like to distribute gold dollars or "yellow boys" of higher denominations, but who have been barred from banking house gold reserve cellars for three or four years when seeking shiny Xmas gifts of the monetary kind, are happy once more.

Announcement was made this afternoon at national banking institutions of the city that the federal reserve board has lifted "the ban" and gold may be used "to the limit" to fill the demands of the gift-distributors.

There is some significance in this announcement, according to an official of the Union National bank. The reserve board did not put the ropes on this custom of giving away gold at Christmas for any good and solid reason. When the edict went out about four years ago, every piece of gold in sight was needed to use as a foundation for the paper money that had to be issued in tremendous quantities to finance the "boom" that ran during the war and for about two years following the armistice.

During the past 15 months, according to a local banker, the paper money thus issued has been gradually retired under Uncle Sam's system of "elastic currency." Whereas in 1920 the gold reserve was about 10 per cent. of the reserve on banks' liabilities, it has recovered since then to almost 50 per cent.

Lowell bankers say there will be plenty of real gold for all regular bank patrons and others who may want some to give away at Christmas. It can be obtained in the usual way.

There is a shortage of actual new paper money in some years, but none this year, bankers say. Almost anyone will be able to get all the nice clean one, two or five and ten-dollar bills they want any time for the Christmas rush, and larger denominations can be had, too, of course, if the giver feels inclined to go higher.

assorted columns in patterns to suit the most fastidious bedroom occupant. In fact, bedsteads in the old days in Salem were the most important part of home furnishings, particularly when you were able to get some of those extra fine British sheetings, a few Scotch "hairs" and one or two "sattinets" and a real bed ticking of "superior Indigo checks."

The only pathetic item in the 1826 Salem Register that tells little, but probably covers a multitude of deep regrets, is John Jacob Caldwell's little "notice" on page 4 of the Register, where John Jacob is forced to state that his wife Esther has "behaved in an unbecoming manner, and he must perforce admonish all persons to refrain from harboring Esther or trusting her on John Jacob's account," as he refuses to pay "any more bills of Esther's contracting."

Oh, yes! and Joe Chandler of Hamilton street, had 35 barrels of good hard cider to sell, and the price was right!

Do folks eat more Bond?

The answer to above question will appear in this space tomorrow.

Yesterday's Question: "Food-value"—what is it?

The Answer: In practical terms, food-value is that proportion of your food which you finally assimilate and turn into energy, flesh and bone. The fact that Bond Bread is high in calories does not mean so much as the fact that it is high in food-value. In other words, the big point about Bond Bread is that it is both exceptionally nourishing and also exceptionally digestible. Those two points together mean food-value at its utmost.

Declines to Be Drawn Into Controversy

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Kenesaw M. Commissioner Landis declared that insofar as he was concerned, the joint meeting would be held as scheduled, but he was not prepared to say whether the American league club owners would participate.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Ten of the 16 teams of bicyclists that started the 33rd annual six day race at Madison Square Garden, at midnight were tied at 580 miles at the 27th hour early today. Four others were a lap behind. Walker and Lorenz, two of the original starters, dropped out last night. Rutt, partner of Lorenz, and McBeath, Walker's partner, formed the new combination leaving 14 teams in the race. Belloni was leading at 3 a. m. The previous record was 598 miles, one lap, made by Lawson and Drobach in 1914.

PONZI VERDICT STARTS JURY REFORM EFFORT

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Appointment of a committee of the Boston Bar Association to investigate jury service in Suffolk county and throughout the state with a view to obtaining remedial legislation, where abuses are found, was announced yesterday by President Henry F. Hubbard, Attorney-General Allen, in commenting on the acquittal of Charles Ponzi, get-rich-quick promoter, by a jury in the superior court, which tried him for larceny last week, said such action was necessary.

The committee is headed by Homer Albers, dean of Boston University Law school. Replying to an attack by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen on the verdict of the jury that acquitted Charles Ponzi of state charges of larceny and conspiracy to commit larceny in superior court late Friday night, Philip Imbushfield, foreman of the jury, issued a statement last night in which he said:

"Ponzi's acts in our judgment were the acts of a man who had at the time no criminal intent to do any wrong, and therefore, was innocent because he acted in absolute good faith."

Answering a statement of the attorney-general that it was hard to understand how the jury could acquit Ponzi after he had pleaded guilty in the United States court to using the mails with intent to defraud, Mr. Imbushfield declared that it was established that Ponzi had done so under pressure of his counsel and his wife, but that at all times declared his innocence.

CONGRESSMAN BEEDY IS WELL KNOWN HERE

An interesting feature in connection with the visit to this city of Hon. Carroll L. Beedy, United States congressman from Maine, who is to be the speaker at the chamber of commerce Appreciation dinner to be given in the Auditorium, Thursday, December 14, is that he is well known locally to several people.

Congressman Beedy while attending Bates college, Lewiston, Me., was well acquainted with John A. Hunsnewell, local manager for the Lowell Electric Light corporation, in speaking of the friendship existing between him and Beedy. Mr. Hunsnewell said that the present congressman was very popular among all the students and was noted as the orator of the college. "Beedy was a spellbinder," declared Mr. Hunsnewell, "because his delivery was perfect and touched with just the right kind of pep." He was always very popular.

The committee in charge of the dinner held another meeting this afternoon to make further arrangements. Inasmuch as this will be the first dinner to be held in the main hall of the Auditorium there are many details which have to be worked out for the first time, such, for instance as the placing of tables.

Harry Prescott Graves has plotted out a table arrangement for the committee with a seating capacity of 550. This includes the stage.

FREIGHT WRECK TIES UP TRAFFIC AT TAUNTON

TAUNTON, Dec. 5.—While switching in the freight street, freight yards of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad at Taunton, this morning at 6:05, four freight cars were derailed. Two of the cars slowed across the track and tore up the track for some distance, and completely blocked all traffic. The 6:20 train for Providence was out of town 8:17 and the 6:55 for Boston were consolidated and sent via Middleboro at 7:35. The boat train known as the 7:37, was sent via Middleboro. The 8:09 for Boston was sent via Middleboro. At 8:36 the track was cleared. The cars which were derailed were connected with the Taunton-New Bedford freight.

MERRIMACK RIVER BAPTIST ASSOCIATION

Excellent attendance of members from numerous county cities and towns marked the rally of the Merrimack River Baptist association, held yesterday afternoon and last evening at the First Baptist church, Lowell. Lawrence, Methuen, Haverhill, Tewksbury and Andover were largely represented.

Among the speakers were Rev. Joseph Robbins, foreign secretary of the American Baptist Missionary society; Rev. F. P. Peterson, Rev. W. E. Waterbury and Rev. Arthur T. Brooks. Rev. Mr. Robbins' subject was "Following the Pioneers." He described a round-the-world trip taken by himself and visits to various mission fields. He declared that many American mission workers endure untold hardships in order to spread the word of the gospel, but perform their work for humanity without flinching.

He called upon the loyal Baptist brotherhood to support the missions regularly. The rally day program included a symposium, "The Gospel of Prayer," conference led by Rev. Dr. Waterbury, teaching along the lines of missionary education led by Rev. Dr. Peterson; an inspirational address by Rev. Mr. Adams; supper at 6:30 o'clock, then one-minute addresses by the presidents of the young people's societies, Dr. Peterson as toastmaster, a song service led by Dr. Brooks of the Dudley Street Baptist church, Boston; discussions by visiting clergymen on "Winning Souls" and "Working Units of the Baptist association," winding up with Rev. Mr. Robbins' address on "Following the Pioneers."

The Lowell rally was the fifth of its kind to be held and one of the 24 to be held all over the state in the coming months.

SPRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE Paul Cassidy, 47 years, and residing in the Rogers block in Gorham street, sustained a painful injury to his head yesterday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile, operated by Edward D. Jordan, of 350 East Merrimack street. The accident occurred in Gorham street, when, so Jordan claims, the little fellow ran from behind an auto and into the path of the machine. The boy was treated at his home.

NEW CITY HOLDS ELECTION

Gardner Holds Its First Municipal Election Today—Hot Campaign

Barber and Store Proprietor Candidates for Mayor—Other City Elections

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—A new city made its formal appearance today when Gardner held its first municipal election. There are now 28 cities in Massachusetts, of which 20 selected their city governments today. Sixteen will vote next Tuesday and one, Waltham, on Dec. 19. It is an off year in Cambridge and Somerville, which have biennial elections.

The first municipal campaign in Gardner has been hotly waged, the candidates for mayor, without party designations being Chester P. Deane, proprietor of a department store, and Nelson Beaudet, a barber, who has been a subcommittee of the town for six years and at present is chairman of the board. The population of Gardner in the 1920 census, was 16,371. The other cities electing today are Brockton, Chicopee, Fall River, Fitchburg, Gloucester, Haverhill, Holyoke, Leominster, Marlboro, New Bedford, Norburyport, Northampton, Peabody, Pittsfield, Quincy, Salem, Springfield, Taunton and Westfield.

In Brockton and Marlboro, it is the last annual election, the biennial plan going into effect next year. The mayor's term of office holds over for another year in Chicopee, Leominster, Newburyport, Salem and Taunton, but new city governments will be chosen today.

The Shoe Workers' Protective union, with a large membership in Haverhill, shoe factories, where labor disputes have been in progress for a long time, openly entered the municipal campaign in that city, supporting Mayor Parkman R. Flinders for re-election over Dr. W. D. McFee.

New Bedford has three candidates for mayor, John F. Hatch, Jr., and Edward R. Hathaway opposing Mayor Walter H. B. Remington. Another three-cornered contest is in Pittsfield, where the candidates are Charles W. Power, republican; Patrick J. Moore, democrat, and Albert D. Reinhardt, independent.

Rev. Robert A. Bakeman, pastor of the Second Congregational church in South Peabody, is a candidate for mayor of Peabody, where Mayor William A. Shea seeks re-election for a third term.

LOYAL WAMWIT LODGE

N. G. Charles R. Allen occupied the chair at last evening's meeting of Loyal Wamwut lodge, 7102, I.O.O.F., M.U., which was held in Odd Fellows building, Middlesex street. One new member was elected by ballot and two were initiated. Routine business was transacted and it was announced that the election of officers will take place at the next meeting, which will be held on the evening of Dec. 18.

AT THE MIDDLESEX WOMEN'S CLUB

Mrs. Gordon Brinley, wearing epitomes of the 14th century, entertained members of the Middlesex Women's club yesterday afternoon with delightful dramatic interpretations of Chaucer. Although the English of the Chaucer period is not easy to follow and is vastly different from that spoken today, Mrs. Brinley overcame it by clear explanations of the differences in pronunciation. Chaucer wrote in London dialect and made it the standard language of the country. Naturally, who read much from "The Canterbury Tales" and the entertainment was greatly enjoyed.

Stop That Nagging Ache!

DAY after day the same, old nagging back-ache! Lame, stiff and aching in the morning—tortured all day long with stabbing, rheumatic pains. It's little wonder that evening finds you weak, tired and nervous—too worn out to rest or relax. But can you afford to neglect these warning signals? That constant backache, you know, is often Nature's first hint of weakening kidneys. Other symptoms follow in quick succession—headaches, dizzy spells, jumpy nerves, "blue" spells, and distressing bladder irregularities. Don't wait until it is too late! Every moment's delay brings added danger of serious kidney sickness. Get back your health while you can. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"My kidneys became weak and I suffered awfully. My back was so weak I didn't have the strength to walk and I had severe pains across my kidneys and dizzy headaches came over me. My kidneys didn't act right and I was almost helpless. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and three boxes cured me of all signs of the trouble."

Mrs. Lorrain gave the above statement May 4, 1917, and on November 14, 1921, she added: "Doan's Kidney Pills have freed me of kidney trouble and I am enjoying fine health."

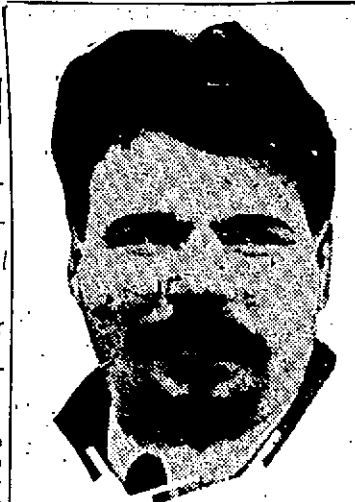

H. W. HILLIARD City Fireman, 45 Branch St., says:

The above statement was given October 29, 1914, and on November 14, 1921, Mr. Hilliard added: "I use Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and they always help me."

MRS. GRACE GILMAN 10 LaGrange Court, says:

"I suffered from kidney complaint and I found the drinking water for the trouble. Awful pains through the small of my back had me nearly past going. My kidneys acted too freely and I was so nervous at times I could fly to pieces. Snacks floated before my eyes and confused me. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and after using them I was entirely cured of kidney disorder."

"ILIODOR" A BAPTIST With the avowed intention of becoming an American citizen and joining the Baptist church, George Trufanoff, the Russian monk known as Iliodor, reached New York from his native land. Iliodor was an intimate of Rasputin and a friend of the czar. He gave the czar and royal family their last meal before their assassination.

REPORT OF PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT OFFICE

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—The state public employment office announced today that its activities for November showed a falling off from the previous month but a substantial gain over the corresponding month of last year. During the month there were 20 per cent. fewer calls from employers than in October, 15 per cent. fewer positions were filled and seven per cent. fewer persons applied for employment. As compared with November, 1921, there was an increase of 45 per cent. in employers' calls, an increase of 36 per cent. in position filled and a decrease of 24 per cent. in applicants for employment.

The demand for unskilled labor decreased somewhat with a larger supply of applicants than at any time in the last six months. There was a slight decrease in the demand for skilled tradesmen. The supply of men for errands, offices and factories, did not equal the demand.

The general demand for women workers decreased considerably. There are still, however, about three employers for every applicant for housework.

NORFOLK, Dec. 5.—Fire destroyed the town hall early today. The building, built in 1797, was used as a church until 1870. Valuable records were destroyed by the fire, the cause of which was unknown. The loss was placed at $40,000. Fire departments from nearby towns aided in battling the fire.

Elected Mayor of Settlement

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—John S. McGrorty, author and newspaper writer, was a mayor today, but of nothing. Tujunga, a settlement in the Verdugo Hill near here, unable to get help from the sheriff to curb automobile speeders, held an election on two propositions. One was that Mr. McGrorty be elected mayor, the other that certain territory become the incorporated town of Tujunga.

School of Instruction For Snow Fighters

It must be not only newsy, but explanatory when it comes to detail required. And so the Whelan orders went out today covering all the fine points for the pupils of this new school to juggle with.

When Superintendent Whelan of the local division gets the blackboard out and locates the pointing stick, he will be ready for all comers in the query division. But first off the instructor is going to acquaint old and new snow-crushers just how to handle the new puffs. There will be instruction in lifting sweepers and dropping them, cleaning out the brushes, removing obstructions of all kinds in front of the sweepers and under them; what to do in case of bad jams in and out of town; how best to sweep streets that are congested with traffic of many kinds, and other things that cover the main points of traffic congestion elimination.

The Eastern local division this year has the best snow-fighting equipment.

PAINTINGS BY RADIO!

Young Inventor's Machine
Will Transmit Color
Art

By N. E. A. Service
OGDEN, Utah, Dec. 5.—Another step in the development of his invention for the transmission of pictures by wireless has taken Le Roy J. Leishman of this city to the transmission of paintings—color and all.

Leishman, at 25, is known in this part of the country as a brilliant and successful inventor. At 15 he invented a mathematical device for architectural use. Now he has on his list of inventions a system of photography by wire or wireless which he has already demonstrated successfully.

His latest perfection has been his process of broadcasting pictures in color. He has merely added something to his original picture-transmitting apparatus.

In the transmission of black and white photographs, Leishman has adopted the photo-engraving process of taking an image of the picture through a screen of dots. This dotted picture is then sent by electric impulses over the wire or by wireless to a receiving instrument similar to the transmitter.

Following closely this system, Leishman figured there ought to be a way of sending color by a similar method. He divided the colors in three primary groups—red, yellow and blue—in done in color printing. By broadcasting these pri. ary colors separately and then overlapping them where ever it was necessary, he found he could reproduce the original painting. Leishman has already succeeded in sending color pictures by wireless. In fact, he has gone a step farther in this process by devising a receiving machine that would combine the primary colors sent separately so that the original picture will come out at once. But the invention is not yet finished, says Leishman. He is working over its details with the intention of being directed through the streets bringing out a perfect machine which can be depended upon for good results. For this reason, Leishman is not offering his product for practical use at present.

CONVENIENT AUTO RADIO SET

receiving set lies conveniently between the front seats, while the antenna wires are concealed in the lining of the top, brought through one of the supports and connected to the apparatus.

PLAN RADIO FOR FIRE TRUCKS

Several cities throughout the country are planning to include radio apparatus with their fire-fighting equipment. This is a result of a practical demonstration given some time ago in San Francisco, in which fire trucks were directed through the streets by means of radio.

The tests were arranged by Fire Chief Thomas H. Murphy and members of the Pacific Radio Trades Association, for the benefit of the visiting fire chiefs in convention at the time. Several of the visitors were so enthralled over the idea that they brought it back for adoption in their own cities.

At the San Francisco demonstration an army truck, equipped with a sending and receiving set, traveled at high speed through the streets, while it kept in constant communication with fire headquarters. It picked up the fire signals and was controlled from the broadcasting station.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalence of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are among the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patients, who usually content themselves with "doctoring" the effects of the disease. The disease constantly undermines the system.

Weak kidneys may cause lumbago, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints or muscles, at times have headaches or indigestion, as time passes you may have a sallow complexion, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, sometimes feel as though you had heart trouble, may have plenty of ambition but no strength, get weak and lose flesh.

SPECIAL NOTE:—You may obtain a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root by enclosing 10c to Dr. Kilmer & Co. Binghamton, N. Y. They will also send you a book of valuable information, containing many of the thousands of grateful letters received from men and women who say they found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed in kidney, liver and bladder trouble. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample size bottle. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

If such conditions are permitted to continue, serious results are sure to follow. Kidney Trouble in its very worst form may steal upon you.

If you feel that your kidneys are the cause of your sickness or run down condition, begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the famous kidney, liver and bladder medicine, because as soon as your kidneys are well, they will help the other organs to health.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular medium and large size bottles at all drug stores. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., which you will find on every bottle.

Adventures of The Twins

IT WAS THE SAME OLD BROOM

Nancy and Nick looked and looked everywhere. They not only asked all the Mother Goose people up in the sky, but all their fairy friends as well. It was Mr. Sprinkle-Blow, the weatherman who said something which made the Twins stop hunting and sent them hurrying to the little chocolate drop of a house on a high mountain where Mother Goose lived.

"I wouldn't wear out my Magic Shoes if I were you," advised Mr. Sprinkle-Blow. "Mother Goose doesn't need her old broom any more. This morning when I looked down from my house in Bluster-Gust Land, I saw a broom leaning up against her woodshed. She must have gotten a new one."

"Hello, children!" called Mother Goose when she saw Nancy and Nick coming. "Tired hunting?"

"Oh, no," answered Nick. "Only we heard you had a new broom."

"Highly tight?" she exclaimed. "New broom, indeed! Who said so?" Nick told her what Sprinkle-Blow had said.

"Well, I declare! I'll have to look!" cried the good fairy lady in astonishment. "I didn't know a thing about it."

So they all rushed out. There was a broom, just as "the Weatherman said." But not a new one! It was the same old broom Mother Goose always used.

"It's been there all the time, I do believe," cried Mother Goose. "Yes, I remember now, I was cleaning up after the wood-chopper, and forgot to put it behind my door where I always keep it. Will you tell the Fairy Queen, my dears?"

The Twins hurried off to spread the good news.

LOWELLITES IN FLORIDA

Interesting Letter From Lowell Man in St. Petersburg—Alligator Story

Lowell friends of F. X. A. Hurtubise, Sun's long-time reporter and temporary winter war correspondent in southern climes centering around St. Petersburg, Fla., where the Russian tea from Commercial street, Boston, is kept cool with Palm Beach artificial ice cakes floating on top, were duly impressed by first reports from the vacation front to the effect that the sun always shines where the printers hold the fort. But F. X. A. H.'s little adventure with a seven-foot alligator right on one of St. Petersburg's main thoroughfares and the battle between said alligator and a Back Bay chauffeur hobbled in southern climes for the winter with a smart set party from old Brookline, Mass., made real reading when we opened Mr. Hurtubise's latest bulletin from Fairyland.

The Back Bay chauffeur's capture of the alligator and the muzzling act, topped off with a belly dance by the "gator farm" where it belonged, is Mr. Hurtubise's very latest in pleasant December fiction from a very hard front where nothing is cool or wet unless you have the money.

The muzzling of the northern tourists with the Florida reptile was occurred on a very dark night when a party of autoists were returning home from a deep-sea fishing trip. Auto No. 1 jounced over the "gator"; auto No. 2 stopped to see what happened. Just where that Boston chauffeur got his training on how to handle crazy alligators, no one ever knew, but he knew how to rope, tie and bind the lost dozen of the Florida waters, and it made an interesting story for the next day's St. Petersburg Sun—a popular paper with a popular name.

Mr. Hurtubise has discovered quite a host of Lowell visitors on his jaunt through St. Petersburg recently. Among the Lowellites found were Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Brown, Harold S. Brown, Floyd C. Boharrell, Charles T. Kilpatrick, Edward G. Bailey, H. A. Dorby, Mrs. Mary Blanchard, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Russell, Miss Eva J. Williams; also Margaret D. WHY EDUCATION WEEK?

This is Education week, the observance of which is of interest to all classes of citizens. It is set apart for the purpose of promoting the means and the ends of education.

Never before have the opportunities of obtaining education along varied lines been offered so freely, so profusely and so abundantly. It was said of old that there is no royal road to education, which means that education can be acquired only by hard study and that neither wealth nor station can advance a man's education unless he himself does the work.

It is true that wealth can secure the best teachers and the best facilities for instruction; but that is all. The mind cannot be charged with education as a storage battery with electricity.

Real education comes as a result of hard study, by which the mind is developed so that it can grasp problems which before seemed beyond comprehension. The faculties of the mind are capable of great development by proper training, just as the muscles of the body may be developed by the training afforded by a gymnasium. In a similar manner, the moral nature is trained to a keen sense of the difference between right and wrong, the observance of divine laws and the practice of virtue.

Great strides have been made in education in this state, not only in the matter of elementary education, but in College Extension courses, which are brought to the doors of the people throughout the commonwealth.

Wherever some twenty students come together and want instruction upon any given subject, they have but to apply to the state department of education to have a competent instructor provided. That is a privilege that is not fully appreciated. The poor boy or girl cannot go to college; but he or she can have college branches taught at their very doors.

With so many subjects and even specialties thrust upon the teachers in elementary and high schools, it is not surprising that there should be lack of thoroughness and a superficiality that argues against the efficacy of the system. This, however, may come from lack of sustained effort in the part of the pupil or from ineffective teaching, which may be due to a faulty system or too many interruptions. It is alleged that many of the teachers find it impossible to do their work thoroughly because of interruptions by special teachers which draw the pupils' attention in an entirely different direction. There is here a possible evil that might easily be remedied. It is not well to have so many specialists that the most essential branches, such as the three R's, grammar or mathematics, must be slighted.

As for technical and vocational training, it is becoming more general every day in response to sheer necessity. For such training it is necessary that the student shall be well grounded in the study of algebra and geometry. Many families have been mistaken on this matter in believing that they could send a boy to Technology, or even to College, without a knowledge of the two branches mentioned. The college course at the high school is, therefore, the most serviceable in the long run. If the student sees a chance to go to college, he has the equipment, and if he doesn't, he has had the best substitute or the nearest approach to a college education.

On the selection of a vocation, much depends; and it is of the utmost importance that this question be settled as early as possible. "Art is long and time is fleeting," and to master a profession or an important line of business is usually as much as anybody can accomplish in a lifetime. Years lost in youth by floundering from one calling to another are like months lost in the seed time when the conditions are favorable for planting and thus providing for an abundant harvest.

THE IRISH FREE STATE

The announcement that Timothy Healy has been appointed governor-general of Ireland, will be received with mixed feelings even in Ireland. Mr. Healy has not taken a prominent part in national affairs in recent years. He attained unfavorable notoriety in Parnell's day by using his power of sarcasm to stigmatize the great Irish leader. For that, the people have never forgiven him. He was recognized as an able man, but he had a vitriolic tongue and a poisonous pen. Inasmuch as he has not indulged either to any great extent during the past ten or twelve years, he may be regarded as a neutral quantity as between the contending factions in Ireland at the present day. Usually the man selected for such a position is not identified with any bitter controversy among the people over whom he is to preside. Healy is an Irishman. He has always been a nationalist, but during the period in which Mr. Redmond was leader, little was heard of him and he dropped out of sight as a national figure, devoting his time mainly to the practice of law in which he has been quite successful. As head of the Irish Free State, he may prove quite successful. The duties in any case are merely perfunctory as he simply has to ratify the action of the parliament, unless it is regarded as outside the constitution of the Free State, in which case, in virtue of his office, he would be required to veto it.

Now that the Irish constitution has been formally put into effect, the Irish Free State today starts upon its official career as one of the associated nations of the British empire. The formal connection with England is

Christmas story: "Mamma, how do you spell railroad train?"

Mrs. Santa Claus has a awful time. Her husband hangs around the house all the time except Christmas.

Our idea of a good time is sitting around wondering how tired we would get if we were not too lazy.

Learning Appreciated
"Annie" called her mistress. "Just come into the dining-room a moment. Now look at this. Watch me. I can write my name in the dust on this table." Annie grinned. "It be a grand thing," she said, "to have an education."

Affectionate Eyes
They were very much in love. "Albert," she said, coyly, "you have such affectionate eyes." He preened himself and put his straight. "Do you really mean that, dearest?" he asked. "Yes," replied the maiden. "Yes, they are always looking at each other."

Joan Was Clever
Father and mother were discussing the costumes they were to wear at a fancy dress ball. Joan, aged 7, was an interested listener. "Mother," she said, "can I go as a millionaire?" No, dear, you're too small!" "But mamma," pleaded Joan, "I could go as a condensed milkmaid."

Wife Mistaken
"I do wish you would quit kicking stamps," complained the wife of the amateur author. "It's vulgar and unsanitary, and besides I hate you a perfectly good stamp collector on your last birthday." "I wasn't kicking those stamps, dear," said the amateur author, with a sad quality in his voice. "I was only kissing them goodbye!"

A Thought
To be honest, to be kind—to exert a little and to spend a little less—to make, upon the whole, a family happier for his presence; to renounce when that shall be necessary and not be contented with a few friends, but these without capitulation—and above all, on the same grim condition, to keep friends within himself—here is a task for all that has of fortitude and delicacy.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Pretty Nasty Trick
William Doubles is noted for his nerve, his shortness of temper, and his severity of cash. While he was seated at a lonely breakfast in his club one morning, a door collector broke in through the door, and presented his bill. "Sir," said William, glaring at him, "is that all you know of the usages of decent society? To present a bill to a man breakfasting, sir? Don't you know that you are an intruder in this club? Do you know I could call the servants and have you thrown out? If you wish to talk business, go outside and send in your card." The collector went out and sent in his card. William picked it up between thumb and forefinger, adjusted his monocle, and read it. "Well, the gentleman," he said, sweetly, "that I am not he."

The Whaling Ship
From Cape de Verde to Hatteras grounds, the line. Up through the Indian ocean. With the "Trades" a-blowing fair.

Till now, up on the Nor-west grounds. That day of Radiak. The last whale's bill fills every cask. The ship is going back.

Her sides are bleached with storm and sun. Her sheathing cracked and foul. And white with salt the shrouds and spars. Through which the cold winds howl.

New sails are bent, new rigging rove. The whale-gear stowed away. For all the crew are busy. While the ship is on her way.

With bricks and sand and holystone they smooth the decks and rails. Then paint the ship inside and out. As ever south she sails.

From cold to hot, from hot to cold. The climates slowly change. Till off the wild coast of New "Horn" they see the iceberg range.

Around the Horn and headed north. Her bows plunging deep in foam. "Crowd on all sail, and let her go!" We're headed now for home!

With every inch of canvas set. That seasoned gear will stand. The days and nights pass swiftly. As the ship approaches land.

Till from the lookout comes a hail. Upon a morning bright. "Land, O!" he shouts, "Land, O!" and then "A pilot-boat in sight!"

"Longside the dock we haul once more. With a creak and a gather round. To welcome home the hungry men. Just off the whaling ground.

So ends the voyage. We'll spend our days. In blissful ease ashore. Until old ocean's mighty voice Shall call to us once more.

—J. C. Allen in the New Bedford Standard.

COAL TEAMSTERS' UNION

A largely attended meeting of Local 72, Coal Teamsters' Union, was held last evening with President Frank Horne in the chair. Considerable business was transacted and a feature of the meeting was the election of officers for the ensuing year, which resulted as follows: Frank Horne, president; Robert Martin, vice president; Frank Horne, secretary; Thomas Osborne, sergeant-at-arms; Ivan Nelson, conductor. The wage situation was discussed and it was stated that the union was not about to hear from the dealers on the matter.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

The treasury has issued a reminder that another payment of income and profits taxes is due December 15. It is estimated that the payment would bring in about $275,000,000. Not all the payment, however, will be in cash, as under the optional forms of payment permitted taxpayers may turn in, in addition to cash or checks, either treasury certificates of indebtedness maturing Dec. 15, or 4 1/2 per cent. Victory notes whether or not they have been called for redemption. Approximately $200,000,000 of the certificates of indebtedness maturing on the last paying date. Besides the certificates of indebtedness maturing Dec. 15, the treasury must take care of about $700,000,000 in Victory notes which have been called for redemption on the same date. Permission to turn in the Victory certificates and notes for cash is an additional facility for taxpayers as well as aiding in the funding of the Victory loan.

Messrs. James and Frank McGinn, of 110 South Walker street, have fitted up a powerful wireless receiver with an amplifier by which concerts, speeches and solos both vocal and instrumental can be distinctly heard by a score of people at the same time. On Sunday night a sermon delivered at a church service in Hingham was distinctly heard and a few nights previous, musical selections in Los Angeles were heard. The McGinn brothers are commencing the peculiar thing about this particular receiving apparatus is that the aerial is a church steeple in Hingham and is nowhere in touch with the outside air. It makes no difference whether the windows and doors are all tightly closed. There is the marvel of the wireless.

I met one of Lowell's oldest citizens on the street yesterday and after talking on topics of general interest, he brought up the subject of politics. Naturally some reference was made to John J. Donovan and his younger days. The man, although a few years older than I, was a member of the North commonwealth team in the North commonwealth team. The team was an "invincible" series with the South commonwealth boys. The deciding game was to be played and both teams were mustering their entire strength. Mr. Donovan was first catcher for the Northies. Two days before the game was to be played Mr. Donovan injured a finger in practice and was unable to take part in the contest. The question came up as to who would umpire the game. My friend said, "This just goes to show how honest the teams regarded Mr. Donovan. In spite of the fact that he was a member of the opposing team, he was the only man the South commonwealth boys would consent to have as umpire. They knew that both teams would get a fair deal from Mr. Donovan." The other incident was regarding the organization of the Father Elliott team. Mr. Elliott, a fellow told me that he was one of the organizers of the club and that Mr. Donovan won a medal for obtaining the greatest number of members for the organization. He said the club had its quarters in Middle street and that P. J. Casey for a great many years with the Wier Co. on Market street, was its first president. He said he believed the club was organized in 1882.

Few men bundle up less, as the saying goes, than the Merchants' street business man, Dudley L. Page. I have seen him frequently on cold and windy days, hurrying down the street with no overcoat entangling his legs, and looking as if he enjoyed the frigidity. Once he walks his coat collar goes up around his ears, though for some of the November breezes were a little "bit." But as a rule you will notice that Mr. Page, restaurateur and soldier, never wears an overcoat on the street unless he really has to.

I am informed that additional markers on historical roads running through New England, are to be erected next year by the highway commissions of each state. There are numerous roads in this state that have no insignia of any kind beyond the cross-roads directory information. There is a long highway in Kent that might be marked very properly, it being one of the oldest in the history of New England roads. The Woburn turnpike, called for some time, is another familiar highway that might bear signs informing strangers about its ancient history and usefulness.

Chelmsford was veterans allied with the American Legion past have been "up in arms" for several weeks past, because the selection of Chelmsford have refused to permit the veterans to use the hall for basketball purposes and social events of similar kind without charge. The veterans, however, had the free use of the hall anytime, the town even providing heat and lights. Now the veterans find the selection opposed to their using the hall without cost, the claim being made that some damage has recently done to the hall interior and having been paid for. The legion and the selection are to meet this week and thrash the matter out. I am informed. The commander of Chelmsford post, A. L. is Comrade William Carl, who by the way is 37 years old and went to the war as a private. He was after the fashion of Policeman John J. Donovan of this city. And Donovan is only slightly older than Carl, who is employed by a paper box-making plant on Middle street.

MINUTE MEN HOLD MEETING

At the bi-monthly meeting of the Minute Men in the vestry of the Westminster Presbyterian church on Tyler street last evening, plans were discussed for purchasing a new organ for the society. John MacIntosh, president, presided. The organ to be installed as a memorial to parishioners who have passed away. Further action will be taken at a meeting of the church members to be held Dec. 13, tomorrow evening, from 8:30 to 7:30 o'clock, there will be a special rehearsal for the Christmas cantata.

UNION ENTERS CITY CAMPAIGN

Open Participant in Municipal Election Held in Haverhill Today

Out for Re-election of Mayor Flanders, and Two Union Men as Aldermen

Haverhill, Dec. 5.—Union labor for the first time in the history of this city, was an open participant in the municipal election today. The Shoe Workers' Protective Union was making active efforts for the re-election of Mayor Parkman B. Flanders, who is an avowed socialist, and for the election of two union labor men to the board of aldermen.

The aldermanic candidates endorsed by the union are Michael J. Kelleher, a plasterer, and Fred W. Pierce, a shoe cutter and a member of the Shoe Workers' Protective union. The union's executive committee for the campaign hired more than 200 automobiles for use in bringing out the vote, and advertised in a local paper that motherly women connected with the union would care for the children in homes where the mothers desired to leave them long enough to vote.

Opposing the union candidates was a citizens' ticket headed by Dr. William D. McFee for mayor. The citizens' aldermanic candidates were Aldermen George L. Martin and Samuel J. Lewis, a grocer, who for years was chairman of the license commission. The citizens' committee openly supported by the shoe manufacturers, also made elaborate arrangements to assist voters to the polls.

The shoe workers in the campaign have asserted that all they seek is a square deal at city hall. The manufacturers have declared that election of the union candidates would mean that the sympathy of the city government would be with the shoe workers in the event of labor troubles and that this would make difficult the maintenance of law and order.

The decision of the union to enter the campaign grew out of labor difficulties at shoe factories here which developed into a contest between the Shoe Workers' Protective union and the Boot and Shoe Workers' union for control of the workers. The Protective claims a membership of 16,000 shoe workers, the majority of whom are employed in this city.

Recently employees of one factory left their work in protest against a wage decision by the state board of conciliation and arbitration. The Boot and Shoe Workers' union, which had organized this factory, refused to authorize a strike and many of its members thereupon joined the rival union. The contest for control then spread to other factories.

The Protective union leaders declared that the city government was not giving them fair treatment, although they claimed the sympathy of Mayor Flanders, and they decided to make an open contest for control of their own. In the primary to determine the final candidates, Flanders led McFee by a narrow margin.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

Vive Clemenceau

His hair shows the frost of the years,
But still there is fire in his eyes;
Erect as a youth he appears,
The hove of age he defies,
He's proved that the soul can arise,
Undaunted by destiny's glance,
And so the whole countryside cries,
"Hurrah for the Tiger of France!"

When others were ruled by their fears,
And read but defeat in the skies,
He scorned either whining or tears,
But masterful, cunning and wise,
He spurred on the lagging allies,
His slogan was ever, "Advance!"
Who lives—if this cause of ours dies?
Hurrah for the Tiger of France!

A man—whom no weariness steers
Aside from the aims he may prize;
Unmoved by the shouts or the jeers,
Alert to attack or advise,
He splendidly stands in the guise
Of warrior who battles with Chance,
Brave figure whose strength none denies,
Hurrah for the Tiger of France!

ENVY

He comes to make stronger the ties
That reach o'er the ocean's expanse,
He's welcome, beyond all surmise,
Hurrah for the Tiger of France!

AMERICAN CHARGE CALLS ON GREEK MINISTER

ATHENS, Dec. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Jefferson Caffery, American charge d'affaires, has made his first call on M. Rentels, acting foreign minister of the new government. Mr. Caffery denied rumors that diplomatic tension existed between the United States and Greece as a result of recent events in this country. The rumors were strengthened by the presence of an American destroyer at Phaleron.

It is said that a destroyer is to be stationed at Phaleron to ensure wireless communication with Constantinople, for it is feared that the Turks may obtain control of the cable. Regular communication between Athens and Constantinople is essential not only for official business but to enable American relief organizations to communicate with each other. The relief work elicits the deepest gratitude here.

MAN ARRESTED ADMITS LARCENY

A young man who gave the name of Harry Wilson, his age as 28, and his home as Troy, N. Y., was arrested today by Lieut. Maher and Sergt. Dwyer, and booked at the police station on a charge of larceny. The attention of the officers was attracted to Wilson in Middlesex street shortly before 10 o'clock when he was endeavoring to sell an overcoat. They questioned him at length and not being satisfied with his answers, escorted him to the station, where, they claim, he admitted stealing the coat from a room occupied by a man named Winters at 76 Worthen street. When searched at the station Wilson had in his pocket a fountain pen, which he claimed he took from Winters' room. It was found that Wilson came here last Sunday and hired a room at 76 Worthen street. He will be arraigned in district court tomorrow morning.

LOCAL COAL DEALER GETS HANDSOME BUCK

From a splendid hunting ground just off old Dunstable road in Tyngsboro, came tidings this morning of the first returns of the open season on deer in the Lowell territory. John H. Preston, the coal dealer, came home with a handsome 225-pound buck of the 8-point variety. The Lowell coal man used a double-barreled shot gun and fired but one shot at a fair distance.

In a scurry from Dunstable to North Chelmsford, taking in the county woodlands and fields away from human habitation, another hunter, George Cutler of North Chelmsford, captured a small doe on his Monday outing with easy trailing. Numerous other hunters left the city early today, hoping the snow would stick long enough to make tracking good for real sport.

"Our cellar spell has gone for good"

"Some cellars never seem to smell just right, no matter how much they are cleaned. I know ours didn't for years. I am so fussy about things like that. I made Frank's life miserable about it."

"Of course, he did everything—sprayed around with horrid-smelling powders and messy mixtures. He even had a man come in and whitewash the walls again. But that indescribable, damp, musty odor refused to budge."

"Then, one day, Janice Colt told me of the wonderful things Sylpho-Nathol had done in her house."

"She was enthusiastic because it was so easy to use. 'Think of it, my dear, just a teaspoonful in a quart of warm water! It makes the cleanest-smelling, pearly-gray solution ready for instant use.'"

"Sylpho-Nathol is 4 1/2 times stronger than carbolic acid—so you can imagine what it does to germs. It is safe to have about, too—the druggist says it is no more dangerous than a cake of scouring soap. And it doesn't roughen or hurt your skin one bit. You'll like its faint, pleasant odor, I know. Just buy a bottle and see for yourself."

"It's a pleasure to go into our cellar now. Sylpho-Nathol has made it so sweet and clean and healthy. But the cellar isn't the only place we use it."

"I use it every day—in the mop water, because it destroys the germs that are in dust and dirt. I pour it down the sink drains—because it keeps such places free from the slightest trace of odors. It has made me forget that there is such a thing as a garbage can."

"Of course, I use it regularly around the bathroom tiling, and toilet fixtures and as a flush for the closet bowl."

Sylpho-Nathol comes in four handy sizes, 16c, 35c, 65c, $1.25. Most good grocers and druggists have it. If yours hasn't, he can get it. Just ask for it by the name—"Sylpho-Nathol."

Lord Deedes, the husband of Vivian Gould

Lord Carson alone, whose influence was mainly responsible for the failure to settle the Irish question in 1914 and who has throughout his political career been the bitterest opponent of home rule, persisted to the very end in his role of "last ditcher" even when such traditional and home rulers as the Marquis of Lansdowne and the Duke of Devonshire had gracefully yielded to the government view and resolved to give Ireland a chance to prove her sincerity under new conditions.

Devedes frankly confessed that the short month in which he has been dealing with the Irish affairs in the new government had entirely converted him to the view that Ireland would really "deliver the goods," and he reproached Lord Carson for his denunciatory speech, which could only inflame passion and do harm.

Healy Called Good Choice

Even the appointment of Timothy Healy as governor-general of the Irish Free State, which is momentarily expected to be announced officially, is on rejection recognized as an auspicious event.

When Mr. Healy's name was first mentioned it was received with astonishment and some incredulity. When a governor-generalship is in question the British mind turns naturally in the direction of some titled personage. Now it is admitted the appointment of Mr. Healy would be singularly appropriate.

In the first place, Mr. Healy throughout his political career has been one of the strongest opponents of British connection, and therefore cannot be suspected of the slightest sympathy with British views antagonistic to Ireland.

Secondly, his appointment would link the Free State with all previous phases of the home rule struggle, for, besides being one of the greatest lights of the Parnell movement, he is connected with still earlier struggles, by reason of his relationship to T. D. Sullivan author of "God Save Ireland."

Moreover, Kevin O'Higgins, minister of home affairs, who plotted the constitution through the Dail Eireann, is Mr. Healy's nephew, and Mr. Healy's exceptional intellectual and legal gifts undoubtedly have been at the disposal of the new Irish ministers, and are expected to prove invaluable to the new government in its difficult initial stages.

LOWELL FIVE WINS OUT VICTORY FOR PORTLAND

From Colonials of Boston
—Score 16 to 6

The Lowell Five formally opened its basketball season last night by winning over the Colonials of Boston at the Crescent rink by the score of 16 to 6.

The game was a great defensive exhibition with science and effective play featuring the work of both sides. The teams were made up of some of the leading exponents of the game in this section, players who have been at the game for a number of years, and all showed a thorough knowledge of the many tricks of the sport.

The players went at it slowly, working a caging game, and spending the first half in a defensive struggle. The second half was replete with fast and clever work with Lowell showing the better form. It was not until the last ten minutes of play that the winner was determined. Up until that period it was nip and tuck, but a spectacular rally by the Lowell outfit was productive of the desired result.

Neither team scored in the first section, though both outfits threatened on a number of occasions. In the second section the players had better luck and Lowell scored three baskets while the visitors succeeded in registering a single. In the third section Lowell landed five within the hoop while the Colonials had to be satisfied with a lone one.

James Keenan of Lowell scored the first shot of the evening. It was the first basket of the game coming shortly after the second period got under way. It was a thriller that came while the Lowell had was apparently covered in one of the corners of the cage. He tossed the leather over his head and to the surprise of the opposition and to the delight of the fans the ball went into the basket. Due recognition was accorded "Smiling Jimmy" with the ice broken, the game continued the good work. "Fiddle" Morley and Arthur Ryan showed nice form, both scoring three baskets and both turning in some nice defensive work. Morley also played well for the home team, the former being particularly strong in the defensive play. Frankie Murphy was the star for the visitors, getting two baskets, one from mid-floor. Nehmer scored the other basket coming from the foul line. A veteran of many years, played a fine defensive game. Mike McCarthy and Hugh Murphy were the other members of the visiting quintet and they showed up well.

After the barren first session the teams went at it a little faster in the second section with Keenan being the first to register. Nehmer tied it up a little later, while Frankie Murphy put the visitors in the lead with his spectacular dunking skill and steady work, succeeded in throwing two into the basket. Morley followed with one, and Keenan, who started the scoring with a second two in a row.

PORTLAND 5, WORCESTER 1

PORTLAND, Dec. 5.—Portland won over Worcester here last night, 5 to 1. The visitors were crippled by the absence of S. Pierce and the clutch in the second half did not work to good advantage. F. Pierce, the first rush for Worcester, and Pierce, the local goalie, checked, and Jean, who attempted to separate the pair, and the result of a big scene that followed when the gallery leered the big centre and he in turn slunk his head under the basket. It looked as though the fans from the side lines would wreck the game in an attempt to get at Jean. But this was fruitless, and after a brief delay the game was continued. Griffith was back in the Portland lineup. The score:

"The Toll of the Sea," In Colors, an Unusual Film

ANNA MAY WONG AND BARY MORAN IN "THE TOLL OF THE SEA."

By JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Many consider "The Toll of the Sea" a photoplay of unusual merit because it is all in color and the color job has been done girl with her eyes and imagination stretched out of shape. Anna May Wong is a better Chinese actress than Mary Pickford in "Madame Butterfly" or Constance Talmadge in "East Is West." Her parents must be given due credit for that.

And another unusual feature of this film is that it has the unhappy ending that its plot predicated. There has been no attempt by the producers to offer the conventional happy ending as a sentimental sop to the spiritual cowards who won't take their romance unless it's sugarcoated.

"The Toll of the Sea" is much like "Madame Butterfly." A Chinese girl loves a white man. He returns to America without her. Then he goes back to China with his white bride. The Chinese girl surrenders his baby to his new bride and then walks out into the sea.

She had found the white man cast upon the shore. A Chinese legend holds that the sea demands tribute for each good or beautiful thing it yields. The girl pays the tribute according to the legend.

The movie needs several things to make them better. I believe that they do not need tinted films or voice. The photoplay right now contains all of the essential elements for the development of a distinctive form of expression.

The evolution of the photoplay must be along the lines of simplification. The things that detract from the telling of the story, the idle words in subtitles, flashbacks to show fantastic incidents that have no bearing on the plot, intricate stuff designed to play on emotions not touched by the story itself—all these must be eradicated.

Pantomime is the chief stock in trade of the screen player. (N. B. See Charlie Chaplin) Color and voice can be expressed in black and white action.

No mechanical voice will ever be a faithful counterpart of the human voice. No artificial color will ever be as beautiful as natural color. God didn't plan the universe that way. If man can reproduce natural color and natural voice he is well on the way to the manufacture of robots.

And speaking of simplicity—I believe that William DeMille is the only director of the day who has a practical idea of that word's meaning. William DeMille averages only 1000 feet of excess film on the six and seven-reel pictures he makes. Other directors waste 50 to 200 times that amount. And getting back to "The Toll of the Sea" again—criticism of its color work naturally becomes comparative with "The Glorious Adventure," the Lady Diana Manners film produced in color. "Flitting of 'The Toll of the Sea' more nearly simulates nature. It is easier on the eyes than the British film.

Beatrice Bentley makes her film debut as the white bride in "The Toll of the Sea." She is a beautiful girl. For one unaccustomed to the camera she seems quite at ease. Her cinema future appears very promising.

Center DeWaven is directing himself in "The Waggie" film.

"Long Skirts" is Fatty Kerr's next comedy.

Louis Wolheim, the "Hairy Ape" is the featured player in "Love's Old Sweet Song."

George Raymond is to be featured in "Flesh," an original story by Rupert Julian.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

THE STRAND

Heading the program at the Strand this first day of the week is the great William Fox production, "Who Are My Parents?" a thrilling picture with a lesson for young men. The story deals with mother love, one of the most appealing themes ever presented to an audience and features the famous Follies beauty, Peggy Shaw, together with such stars as Niles Welch, Florence Billings, Roger Lyon and an all-star supporting cast. Of sympathy for the young man, the story opens in the beautiful mansion of a stern father and his two daughters, one of them married and the other single. The married daughter is the object of matrimony, motherhood, for love-ribboned horses and dogs, which she treats with as much care as possible. The younger daughter is secretly engaged to a young business man of good family. She meets regularly in the flower garden. He finally musters up enough courage to request her father for his permission to marry the girl. He is told immediately the father refuses and forbids his daughter to ever see her sweetheart again, saying that she is too young to consider matrimony and that she does not know her own mind. But love finds a way and an elopement is followed by a marriage, kept strictly secret by the contracting parties for nearly a year. The young business man finds a slave in the marriage and it is agreed to go through with the ceremony again. He is killed in an automobile accident, however, and the marriage license found on his person. This proves further irritating to the father who, wishing to keep his daughter in the social set, places her new-born babe in an orphan asylum and tells the mother her child is dead. The events which follow lead to the finding of the baby, a second marriage and the conversion of the older daughter and the father to the true belief in matrimony, after a long trial.

The second feature of the program, "The Lone Hand," with Hoot Gibson is a western story. Hoot is pictured as a hard-hitting cowboy, born bred on a ranch and a lover of it. He meets a girl, buys an automobile and marries and the rest of the story is the part to be seen to be appreciated.

R. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Infinite variety features another excellent amusement series of offerings for patrons of the R. F. Keith Theatre all this week. The program presents distinctive vaudeville and plenty of comedy of the sort fashionable nowadays—cleanly and gently, always, but laugh-provoking with new seasonal bon mots true to Keith circuit court rules.

Manager Pickett's selections for Lowell patrons of this playhouse are running exceptionally to form as usual. When you look for novelty, you find it this week at a crowded house last evening, for instance, enjoyed a presentation of practical modiste fashion pictures from original designs with changing models feminine assisting.

The act showed M. Berg fashioning beautiful gowns out of rolls of silken cloth, using especially to women. M. Berg has studied the modiste's art in the studios of noted Parisian dressmakers and showed remarkable ability in draping the living models.

Classes in vaudeville are William Desmarest and Estelle Collette, exceptionally good entertainers in "Strings and Strangers." The jokes were new for the most part; Desmarest is an acrobat who wears evening clothes and does funny tumblers without injuring his collar-bones, apparently, and the violin and cello come in with good measure, with Desmarest only losing with the cello, but creating a lot of healthy amusement with byplays to gallery and "down front."

Newcomers this week are Burns and Ed Lynn, in "Tunes, Ticks and Taps," an amusing turn with jokes that go well and oddities not found in the average "two in one" nowdays.

"The New Stenographer," a one-act playlet that's different, written by Lawrence Graham, presented Thomas E. Jackson, a friend of old, with Miss Jean Russell in role No. 2, both excellent in the trifle-comedy parts that comprise this clean and clever stock tid-bit. The wind-up of the playlet is unusual and must be seen to be fully appreciated. Jackson is a genuine modern business office man with strings out for good finds in the line of office assistants. Comedy throughout is of the extra dry kind that needs no artificial clap-trap to put it over.

One-legged Ed Ernie and Miss May have an action novelty, with Ed dancing merrily all the latest steps with the aid of a rosewood crutch, and Miss Ernie, "the dancing girl" in reality, assisting with neat whirlwind dances that merit approval.

The Bolger brothers please with the banjos, leading with grand opera and winding up in popular rag ditties that went good with orchestral accompaniment. Anita Diaz's monkey, many of them and most of them smaller, usually seen in vaudeville, offered plenty of novelty amusement and performed cleverly on flying trapezes and the acrobatic antics in good form. Pathé news weekly showed wonderful pictures taken over the Alps from a flying machine, and first run pictures were also shown of movie-trading in the Midwest. Another one of Acap's fables, "The Rolling Stone," completed the week's Keith offerings.

THE RIALTO

Constance Talmadge, well known to the patrons of the Rialto Theatre, opened a two-day engagement yesterday afternoon in one of her latest and best pictures entitled "Folly of the Follies." The dramatic comedy which sparkles all over with wit and humor and Constance brings its best out to perfection. The story hinges around a country girl who has aspirations to go on the stage and who finally surmounts many difficulties and gets into the Follies, though she has to drop out of which he is the proprietor. Polly has had a pretty hard time but braved all difficulties until she has now grown to womanhood with a mind of her own.

The stage offers the natural way for Polly to get rid of the housework drudgery and she goes into amateur theatricals, but she meets the opposition of the old man. The girl is in the midst of one of these shows when the father learns of her whereabouts and arrives in time to break up the performance as the girl is about to conclude.

Kenneth Harlan is the leading man opposite Constance Talmadge and his work is of high order. George Fawcett also does some discriminating character acting and is quite good.

The stars of the Rialto include Jack Hoxie in "Dead or Alive," also an episode of "In the Days of Buffalo Bill," an Arrow comedy, "Idle Wonders" and the Rialto News Review.

Are You Burning Lowell Coke Properly?

The severe shortage of fuel has made conservation an absolute necessity. Those people who have an adequate supply in their cellars are indeed fortunate.

Lowell Coke

has been purchased by many people who have heretofore been unaccustomed to using this kind of fuel.

Lowell Coke when properly burned is the ideal fuel. It gives an even heat and leaves very little ash—none to sift.

If you seem to be using too much Lowell Coke, or if you are not getting good results, we would appreciate it if you would telephone 6790. We will send a man to your home to show you how Lowell Coke should be burned.

PRES. HARDING SUBMITS THE ANNUAL FEDERAL BUDGET

Tells Congress Reduction in Government Expenditures and Taxes Depends on Whether There is to Be Curtailment or Expansion of Federal Aid in Lines of Research, Improvement and Development

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—President Harding, in transmitting the annual budget for the next fiscal year frankly told congress today that whether there was to be any material reduction in government expenditures and in taxes in future years would depend largely on whether there was to be a curtailment or expansion of federal aid in lines of research, improvement and development.

Placing the estimated government outlay in 1923 at $3,180,812,331, a decrease of about $500,000,000 as compared with estimates for this fiscal year, Mr. Harding called attention that two-thirds of this total was on account of practically fixed charges, such as the public debt, national defense, pensions world war allowances and federal aid. There was left, he said, only about one billion in charges subject to administrative control and against which, he added, the retrenchment policy of the government had been directed.

While expressing the opinion that some further reduction undoubtedly would result from a reorganization of government establishments on a scientific basis, the president said this alone would not affect such a material cut in operating costs as would justify the expression of hope for a considerable lessening of expenditures in the years to come.

Taking up the question of federal aid, the executive declared that this was a rapidly broadening field of expenditure, and that there was a question as to how far the government should participate in it. He added that it did not pertain to the normal functions or operations of the business of government.

These extraneous activities," he continued, "have flowed from laws enacted pursuant to popular demand, and I take this occasion to refer to them for the purpose of showing that the taxation which necessarily results in providing funds to meet them is a necessary incident to the fulfillment of the popular demand."

"In the efforts which have been directed to reducing public expenditures, I have been much concerned in apparent increasing state, county and municipal indebtedness, and I am fearful lest this condition may be in part attributable to the expenditures made by the government pursuant to its federal aid laws as many of these state laws require contributions as a prerequisite to the extension of the federal aid."

The summary of the budget for 1924 as given to congress shows an estimated excess of receipts over expenditures next year of $180,969,125, as compared with an estimated deficit of $213,938,712 for this fiscal year. The president said, however, that he was hopeful that the estimated deficit for 1923 could be reduced in the next few months and that the close of the year next June 30, would show a balanced account.

Estimated expenditures of $2,160,442,334 for 1924, which are exclusive of the postal service, compare with the estimated appropriations of $3,078,340,331 for the same period. Mr. Harding explained that the expenditures would represent actual cash withdrawals from the treasury, including some on account of appropriations in previous years.

Another deficit in postal operations was forecast for this year, but Mr. Harding said it was estimated that through proper readjustments, there would be a surplus of postal revenues over expenditures in 1924, amounting to $951,410. For this year postal costs were placed at $589,956,341, or an estimated deficiency of $31,502,570, as compared with an actual deficiency

MILLION DOLLAR SUIT WILL LEAVE LOWELL

Instigated Primarily for Advertising Purposes, Says Counsel for Defendants

BURLINGTON, Vt., Dec. 4.—Declaring that the million dollar suit for alienation of affections brought against Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Woodhouse by Mrs. Dorrit S. Woodhouse, their daughter-in-law, was instigated primarily for advertising purposes and to make the Woodhouses pay, Atty. V. A. Bullard resumed his argument in behalf of the defense today.

In opening his plea, counsel asserted that the plaintiff, in marrying Douglas Woodhouse, "did not want a home, but something else."

In all the letters from his wife which have been produced there was not one word of encouragement to Douglas, counsel asserted. "Not a word in her letters," he said, "was there about a home." He said, adding, that the letters instead were so vulgar that they could not be read openly in court.

Regarding the first meeting between Dorrit and Mrs. L. E. Woodhouse, Mr. Bullard said, the plaintiff had testified that her mother-in-law received her eagerly. He introduced evidence to show that Mrs. Woodhouse received the girl in the garden of the Woodhouse home, and said he could see nothing cold about the reception.

There was nothing to substantiate the claim that Mrs. Woodhouse snubbed her, he argued, contending the attitude of Mrs. Woodhouse was just what it should have been.

Attorneys for Miss Birkhead announced they were ready for trial, had all their witnesses ready to appear when needed and would oppose any move for delay. A venire of 43 jurors has been ordered.

The suit is the third which has been filed by Miss Birkhead, the executive's former stenographer, against Governor Russell. All have alleged seduction under promise of marriage.

The state legislature at its last session also considered the charges against Gov. Russell, and a special committee recommended that no action be taken until a judicial decision had been rendered in the case.

FAULKNER FAMILY SAILS FOR EUROPE

Five Lowell travelers were among those sailing Sunday afternoon from Boston on the White Star steamship Arcturion, bound for the Azores, Naples and Genoa, that carried a large number of foreign tourists.

The steamer sailed shortly after 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon from Commonwealth pier, with pleasant weather predicted for a long distance beyond the Grand Banks.

If all goes well, the Lowell tourists will arrive home some time in June. They plan to visit Italy and Switzerland, France and England, and possibly a portion of Germany, although that had not been decided upon when the travelers went away.

Assistant General Manager of Cartridge Company Going to Connecticut

William H. Buell, until recently assistant general manager of the U. S. Cartridge company and instrumental in producing many ingenious parts of mechanical equipments turned out by that concern on Lawrence street, is going to leave Lowell for good.

He said so this afternoon, when a drove of home-seekers in limousines and other gasoline vehicles fairly swamped the roadway leading to the Buell estate on Andover street, and made offers for the residence, land and everything that goes with it. The property at No. 710, corner of Raven road, was offered for sale last week for the first time. The Buells have more use for the fortune to move to Connecticut after a residence here of but two years.

Mr. Buell is no longer connected with the Cartridge company, he told "The Sun." The announcement that he was out of the office personnel may surprise some Lowell business interests, who considered the Buell connection with the Cartridge company as permanent. Mr. Buell declined to say why he is no longer connected with the Lawrence street concern.

The Buell house is for sale. It has large fronting on Andover street, and is nearly new.

Mr. Buell is interested in a Connecticut concern for general manufacturing located in Clinton. He plans to give all his time to this plant in the future and will make his home nearby.

The company in Clinton was formally capitalized last week for $25,000, under the name of "Buell Brothers company of Clinton, general manufacturing." Mr. Buell said today, however, that while he and Gertrude V. Buell of this city are among the incorporators, with Edgar Buell and Sally M. W. Buell of Clinton, the business has actually been in operation since 1878, and has had a prosperous course all that time.

The Lowell man is an experienced chemical engineer and for nearly two years performed a great deal of arduous work in his line while assistant general manager of the U. S. Cartridge Co.

ALL UP NOW FOR TRACK AND BASKETBALL

With the football season over, the attention of Lowell high school athletic officials is now being turned toward basketball and track. Although still in its infancy in local school circles, basketball has attained wonderful popularity and Lowell high has been fortunate in having such a fast quintet represent it in the past three years. The real practice sessions will get under way in about two weeks at "Gymnasium" and will do the coaching. The call for candidates will be issued soon and it is expected that 100 or more players will respond. The schedule, which includes games with the fastest teams in the state, will be announced within a few days.

Track athletics, the best paying branch in high school sports, will be resumed shortly in the annex. Lowell track teams in the past have established enviable records and the war veterans combined one year squad plus last season's veterans should provide Lowell with a championship team.

LOWELL GUILD COUNCIL MEETING

The monthly meeting of the council of the Lowell Guild was held at the Guild house, 17 Dutton st., yesterday, with the president, Mrs. William J. Robertson, presiding.

According to the annual custom the Guild will dispense Christmas baskets of food to needy families. All gifts of fruit, vegetables, jellies and candies will be greatly appreciated. It will be necessary, however, to have all supplies at hand by Thursday, December 21. A bridge whist and food sale will be held at St. Anne's parish house on Friday of this week to raise money for Guild work.

Jack Daw in Hoopland! Chapter 8

Faster and faster went all the hoops and almost before he knew it Jack was left way behind. Then he decided that he didn't have a chance to win. But, maybe Flip can beat them, thought Jack. "Come on, Flip," he shouted, "go after them; beat them around the track." And Flip started.

Jack stood still and watched his pet dog gain on the rolling hoops. Soon Flip was up to them and then he suddenly shot ahead of the whole crowd. At the finish Flip was far in the lead and as the hoops came trailing in they agreed that Flip was a wonderful dog. This pleased Jack.

"Now what shall we do?" Jack asked the sports leader. And this little round fellow announced that a game of quoits would be next. "But I don't see any quoits," said Jack. "Oh that is simple," shouted the sports leader. "The big hoops use the little ones to throw." (Continued.)

HEARD DR. PAYSON SMITH SIGNS OF CHRISTMAS

Commissioner of Education
Principal Speaker at Low-
ell Congregational Club

Dr. Payson Smith, Massachusetts commissioner of education, the principal speaker at the 125th regular meeting of the Lowell Congregational club held at the Mill Union Congregational church last evening, declared that "one of the greatest problems of the day in the schools as well as in all industrial and human relations is to find the best means of cultivating the art of minding our own business."

He told the Congregationalists that the home, church, library and moving

Yuletide Bells Jangling in Appleton Street—Doings
at the Postoffice

Old Santa has been calling up Lowell branch headquarters on Appleton street, and all queries are freely answered. Business at the local office has been steadily increasing. Postmaster Delfino says, a healthy improvement showing on the November summaries.

The Christmas bells are not jangling very loudly, but Yuletide emblems in painted form, advertising Uncle Sam's customers what to do and what not to do, are on the way, with a small advance consignment arriving yesterday and brightening up the postoffice corridors when attacks posted up merry little notices:

"Get Merry Xmas With a Postal Money Order!"

The cards are neatly designed on pale yellow hangers, bearing a picture of smiling Santa, a few bells here and there, with the usual Christmas in evidence, and a nice green holly border with familiar decorative berries. The cards show the way to the windows where Uncle Sam's expert vendors of everything for sale in the mailing business are beginning to get into training.

Postal Chief Work's Report

The annual report of Postmaster-General Hubert Work has arrived. The chief advocates the public ownership of all postoffices in the land, believing that this policy would relieve the government of much of its present housing congestion.

It would also make for financial economy, since rentals of more than $12,000,000 are now being paid for annually without tangible return. This money could be invested in property of a permanent value, as government-owned buildings are free from taxation, while the government as a lessee must meet its tax bills like anyone else.

Mr. Work also advocates the increasing of interest rates on postal savings from 2 to 3 per cent and the rate on postal savings bonds from 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 per cent.

Lowell postal employees who have been long in the service of Uncle Sam, will be interested to learn that a system of pensions for postal employees who have been in the service more than 30 years, a reclassification of departmental employees, a salary adjustment to permit full pay for overtime, authorization for motor vehicle rental, maintenance of a guaranty fund derived from assessments levied upon postal officials accountable for funds and property to make good losses from the failure of such officials to take the place of the present bonding system.

The postmaster-general also approves of the suggestion made to him some time ago that additional postage be placed on improperly or insufficiently addressed mail and also on collection of postage and collect delivery privileges to third-class mail.

Neglect to properly address letters and parcels costs the public more than $423,000 during the year, but matter sent to the "dead letter" office decreased 16 per cent.

SNOW KING'S ADVANCE AGENT ARRIVES

The advance agent of the Snow King arrived in Lowell early this morning with sample cases apparently filled with non-durable goods of the selective winter variety, but the demand was poor.

The weather was actually too warm for distributing light gifts of the kind which are popular in the winter months, and the dispensing agencies of the weather maker higher up failed to arouse enthusiasm even among humans of the small boy variety.

The weather disturbance was over the upper lakes region last night and moved rapidly northeastward, attending by both rain and snow. Hitting the Merrimack valley it brought snowflakes, large and flaky, of the quick-melting variety. At the same time, a lot of it came down, just enough to start the big snow plows moving over the roads from the handy summer storage barns.

Supt. Whelan issued orders early, as usual, two of the new sweepers and one new shear plow, all up and ready, took the roads for the trip about the town and outskirts. The work was not too heavy, but the big variety of the double and single-track variety, some of them of the combination sweep type, were held in reserve for a big blow.

The first plow went out at 7:30, and were operated most of the morning. The sweepers were necessary to keep the streets from sticking too closely to the plow and switches, for a freeze to night with the slush left on the roads, would cause trouble.

The full-sweeping operations were conducted as far out as Greig's road out to Wilmington on the far line with the usual trip on the Lawrence falls. No trouble was experienced anywhere and car service was nearly on time as a rule.

Wednesday may be fair and colder, with winds becoming strong. If it does grow cooler, the local street railway lines are prepared for eventualities covering the rails anyhow.

picture theatre have an important educational responsibility—that they must be studied so that they may discharge their responsibility more effectively. He further declared that the "schools of today are loaded down with extra responsibilities with all sorts of extra fads and reforms that detract from the efficiency of that for which they were intended."

Before the address there was a social hour in the upper church previous to supper which was served in the vestry at 6:45. All the women of the church aided in preparing the bounteous repast under the leadership of Mrs. Frank Knowles and Mrs. Louis A. Olney as chairman. Young women of the church acted as waitresses.

President Charles L. Randall of the club introduced Miss Edna Lawrence of Andover, a student in the senior class at the State Normal school, who sang a group of negro spirituals. Secretary Louis Alexander read the minutes of the last meeting and Rev. John O. Lovell read a report from the home work committee. Haven G. Hill responded for the membership committee, and then Miss Lawrence sang another group of songs that were greatly enjoyed.

Reference was made to "Educational Week" before President Randall introduced Dr. Smith, whose subject was "Current Problems in Education." The commissioner told of the numerous enterprises of public education, including one-fifth of the population of the state.

He urged greater support of the schools large and small, but decried the acts of those "higher educators of the land" who would place too many burdens upon children, to regulate the children of the elementary and secondary schools would be much better off if they were "in a refined home atmosphere five nights of the week." He said it wasn't the job of the public school, for instance, to regulate the dress and facial adornments of the high school girl—the home should carry such responsibility.

Referring again to the elementary schools, Dr. Smith said: "The two greatest problems are: First, to give children a mastery of the tools of education; that is, the three R's, supplemented by music and art as a means of expression; and second, to help the children to establish right mental, moral and physical habits for the future. I hope some day we may provide a thorough physical program that will be carried out where it will do the most good. The sports program should give all the boys and girls a chance. In colleges and secondary schools the stadium has done a lot to hurt athletes and sports in their true sense, as it has commercialized them rather than making them vital for their own sake. Every boy should participate in all games as far as possible."

Dr. Smith expressed "greatest sympathy with the 15-year-old boy who doesn't know what to do with himself." He said the problem was becoming "more complex" right along. He strongly favors more lucrative employment being taught every child along the lines he is best fitted for. The ideal social status, he said, is that in which each is doing the work he does best and most efficiently."

THE MERRIMACK RIVER HEARING

The hearing on Merrimack river improvements, which was to have been held today before the board of army engineers as a result of arrangements conducted by Congressman John Jacob Rogers, has been indefinitely postponed.

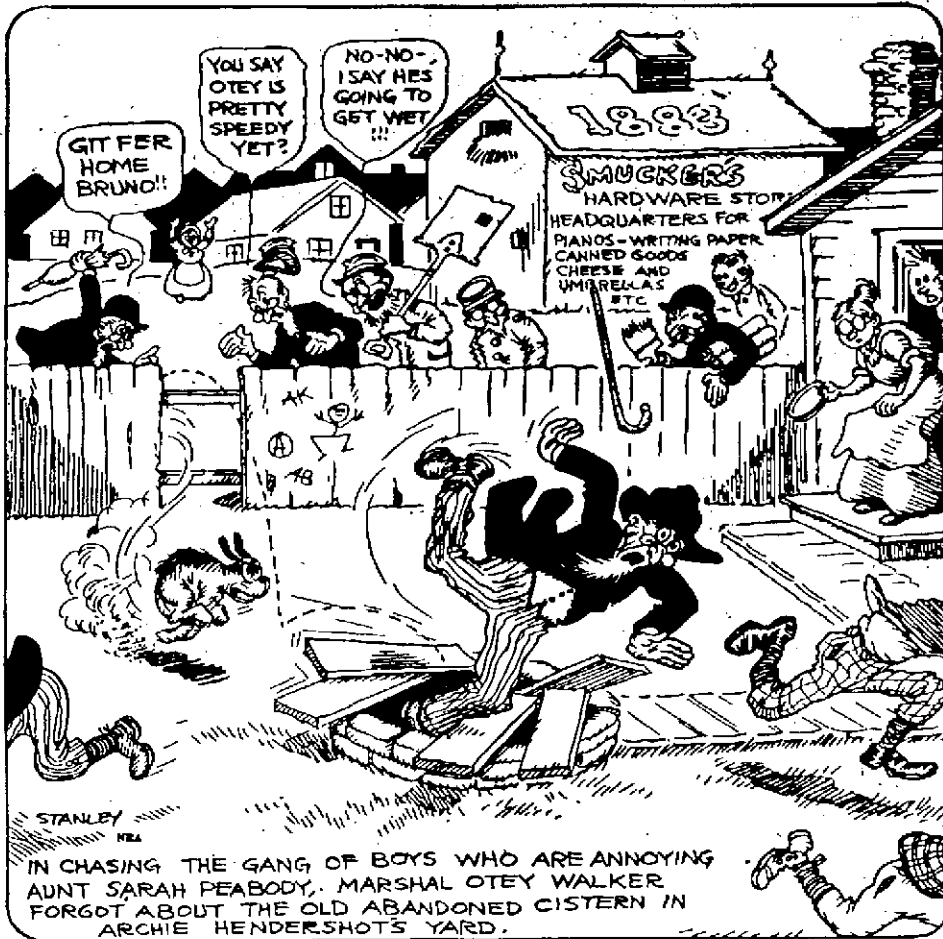

Until late yesterday afternoon, Mr. Rogers expected the hearing would take place and the bill at hand, including representatives of the chamber of commerce, who would urge the board not to approve the adverse plan made by the local army engineers which would prevent the river development that Lowell so ardently advocates. Telegrams have been sent to the army board asking for a postponement until Lowell's representatives may be heard and this has been granted.

Lawrence citizens will be heard from some time in January.

FEAST OF ST. ANDREW AT KILWINNING LODGE

Kilwinning lodge of Masons last night observed the Feast of St. Andrew, as is its annual custom. There was a full membership of the lodge present as well as many invited guests. The historical ceremony was interesting throughout.

Most Worshipful Grand Master Arthur D. Prince was received by the lodge under the leadership of worthy Master Perry D. Thompson. The latter was presented a past master's jewel and a reception to Mr. Prince followed. Others present also were called upon to address the gathering after the dinner and entertainment.

TEACHERS WILL ATTEND BOSTON MEETING

Numerous Lowell school instructors, headed by Headmaster Henry H. Harris and a bevy of high school teachers of both sexes, are to attend the thirty-seventh annual meeting of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, to be held in Boston, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 8 and 9. The convention place is Jacob Sleeper hall, of Boston university. It is located on Boylston street next to the Boston public library.

Friday evening at 6:30 dinner will be served at the Hotel Vendome on Commonwealth avenue. The guests of honor will be President Little of the University of Maine; Headmaster Thompson, Roxbury Latin school; President Nelson, Smith college, and President Faunce, Brown university. The Association of Teachers of Mathematics in New England will hold a convention Saturday, all day, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. On Thursday evening, the members of the New England Association of College Teachers of Education will hold an informal supper and round table discussion at the Colonial club, 20 Quincy street, Cambridge.

At this meeting, which will be attended also by the Lowell instructors, the principal topic will be "College Courses in Education as Rated by Principals of New England High Schools in Response to a Questionnaire." Important subjects are to be reviewed and debated upon at the Friday and Saturday meetings of the association of colleges and secondary schools, among them being as follows:

"Shall a College Diploma Represent four or eight years?"

"Conditions of Admission to State Universities?"

"What is to Become of the Reflected Graduate?"

"Public Welfare and College Admissions."

There will also be reports from committees on education, entrance requirements, committees on standards for secondary schools, reports of delegates to the national conference on uniform entrance requirements in English, and reports from all officers of the association.

MATRIMONIAL

The wedding of Mr. Daniel F. Mack and Miss Mary G. Henderson took place Nov. 29 at St. Patrick's rectory, the ceremony being performed by the pastor, Rev. J. J. McQuinn, D.D., the bridesmaid being Miss Alice Minahan, while the best man was Mr. Timothy Mack, a brother of the groom.

Took Poison and Then Hanged Himself

of Undertakers J. F. O'Donnell & Sons in Market street, where it was viewed later by Medical Examiner T. B. Smith.

Surprenant was last seen alive last night at about 10 o'clock when he retired for the night. Indications in the room pointed to the fact that the man did not sleep at all, and the fact that he was partly clothed when found hanging also substantiated that fact. Upon investigation, the police found that the life line in Surprenant's room had been removed from its hook back of the door and had been tied to the bed, which had been removed to a point near the window in the alleyway. On a table in the room was found a solution of what is believed to be bichloride of mercury. A bottle containing green diamond-shaped tablets, marked with cross bones and a skull, was also found, and indications about the bed pointed to the fact that the man had drunk a quantity of the solution.

Surprenant who had been employed by McCannan Bros. a great many years, and occupied room 15 at the Clifford house for the past ten years. He was regarded as a sober and industrious worker. Deceased has a brother residing in this city.

LOWELL DISTRICT COURT AMERICAN LEGION POST

Judge Enright Says Officers
on Beats Should Assist
Liquor Squad

George Iatrova was fined $125 for illegal keeping by Judge Enright in the district court this morning. In making the finding, the court dwelt at length on the duty of officers on their beats to report any knowledge of illicit traffic in liquor, saying that failure to do so is gross neglect of duty. Hereafter, all regular officers will be instructed to inform the superintendent and the liquor squad of any suspicious establishment where liquor is being disposed of and thus lessen the duties of the members of the liquor squad.

Another complaint of illegal keeping preferred against Joseph Sullivan, brought a fine of $100, while similar charges against Alfred Pelequin and Joseph Sarachik were continued until December 16, and for two months, respectively.

Lena Brown was found guilty of being a lewd and wanton person and was sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory for women. She was found not guilty of larceny.

For operating an automobile without the influence of liquor, Edward Gingskie was ordered to pay a fine of $100. A charge of drunkenness was placed on file.

Thomas J. Kelleher was given a three months' sentence to the house of correction for being drunk. On a non support charge preferred later by his wife, the sentence for drunkenness was revoked, and the same sentence for non support imposed. James P. Meaney, for non support of a minor child, was granted a continuance to Dec. 12.

Harry P. Brunelle pleaded not guilty to a complaint charging him with assault and battery on his wife, Mary A. After giving sound advice to both parties, the court ordered that Brunelle be placed in the care of the probation officer for one month.

Election of Officers by Local Post—Joseph A. Molloy, Commander

The local post of the American Legion last night elected its officers for the year 1923. They are as follows: Joseph A. Molloy, commander; Colin C. MacDonald, senior vice commander; George McCarthy, junior vice commander; Joseph M. Dinneen, treasurer; Rev. William F. Mahan, O.M.I., chaplain; Thomas B. Higgins, historian.

With the exception of the office of junior vice commander there were no contests for the office, all of the men having been nominated without opposition. The commander-elect enlisted in the national guard at the outbreak of the world war, went to France and came back with the rank of captain. He was the winner of several medals for bravery. He succeeds Stephen C. Garity as head of the local post.

With the new quarters in the Veterans' quarters of the Memorial Auditorium available, and the organization on a solid foundation, the membership of the local post should be increased greatly within the next few months. Last night's election was by ballot, the Australian system being used. The polls were opened at 7 o'clock and closed at 9 o'clock. The officers in charge of the election were Michael H. Harrington, George Whelan, Eugene Loupre, Arthur P. Moran and William D. Regan.

LIMIT BOXING SHOWS

DETROIT, Dec. 5.—Boxing shows in Detroit are to be limited to one each week, the licensed clubs alternating in making the bouts under regulations made public today by the athletic division of the state department of public safety. The ruling was made to assure sufficient patronage for the various clubs and to avert cancellations of bouts because of failure to meet the boxers' guaranteed funds.

THE TWO AND ONE-HALF STORY TWO-TENEMENT HOUSE AND STORE AND ABOUT THIRTY-SEVEN HUNDRED SQUARE FEET OF LAND AT NO. 45 WEST ADAMS STREET, LOWELL, MASS., IS HEREBY FLEDGED TO THE HIGHEST BONA FIDE BIDDERS AT UNRESTRICTED PUBLIC SALE ON NEXT SATURDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1922, AT THREE O'CLOCK P. M.

The premises consist of a full two and one-half story dwelling containing two tenements and store. The tenements have four rooms to each with toilet and gas. There are parlor, living room, dining room and kitchen on the one floor in the upper flat, and the same plan besides parlor and shed and electric lights in the lower tenement. The store fronts on the street and is conducted as a grocery and variety store, is electrically lighted and has separate toilets and city water. The building is in very good order and is fully rented. The tenements paying fifteen dollars and sixteen dollars each, respectively, and the store yielding sixteen dollars monthly, making a total rental of forty-seven dollars per month, or five hundred and sixty-four dollars per year. The cellar is high posted and divided for each tenement. The building is supplied with front and side entrance and has side entrance on the third story. The lot has a total area of thirty-seven hundred square feet of land with an unusual frontage on West Adams Street of fifty feet, and the building, located in a corner of the lot, gives a considerable open area for yard room. The location is most convenient and by neighborhood is composed of homes and business establishments. The property is within a step of the new plant of the National Biscuit Company, the Lyon Carpet Company, the Saco-Lowell Foundry (formerly Peavey's Foundry) the Bay State Cotton Corp. and the plant formerly occupied by the Lamson Co., and within comfortable walking distance of many other manufacturing industries, and also being within easy walking distance of both the Broadway line of electric and the Middlesex Street-North Chelmsford line. There are many attractive and high grade residences within a short step of these premises, thus making the property unusually attractive as a location so convenient to industry and yet essentially in a home locality. The sale of the above premises is a most unusual opportunity, as the premises being of two tenements, affords the owner's chance to occupy one of the flats and receive sufficient income of both the store and other tenement to pay the carrying charges of the entire property; and again, the owner, if he so chooses, could conduct the store business, live in one flat, and have a substantial income from the other. The sale of the premises should directly appeal not only to the home seeker, but to the investor as well. The premises, being entirely equipped and the owner having an established business for a considerable period, assures the owner of steady and continued rental. Terms: $100.00 must be deposited with the auctioneer as soon as the property is struck off. Other terms to be made at the sale.

WOMAN SLAYER BREAKS JAIL

Says Wife Was Unfaithful

EVIDENCE COMPLETED IN PERRIGO HEART BALM CASE

Plaintiff is Final Witness and Testifies as to Wife's Alleged Infidelity—Tells of Finding Her in Manchester Inn and of Her Arrest and Conviction in Court

Evidence was completed at 3.15 o'clock this afternoon in superior court here in the case of Miner P. Perrigo, who is suing Edgar F. Twombly of Billerica for $25,000 for alleged alienation of his wife's affections.

The last witness was Perrigo, himself, who testified that at one time in 1918 he had found his wife with another man at the Carleton Inn, Manchester, N. H., that he had caused her arrest on a charge of adultery and had paid her $50 in a Manchester court.

He testified further there had been no separation after that affair and it was not until June of this year that his wife showed any signs of a change in her attitude toward him.

The jury was excused after the evidence was all in and opposing counsel argued with the court on the number of counts in which the case was to be presented to the jury. The judge ruled that it should go on the first count, that of criminal conversation or adultery, but was undecided as to the second count, that of enticement.

Counsel for both sides fought every issue introduced regarding the records and this was followed by a lengthy conference with the court, when the case opened this forenoon. It was finally decided to admit as evidence the records, which appears to be an important victory for the plaintiff.

The case of the records has to do with the time Miss Ella Whitehead worked in the Talbot mills on the 25th of last July. Miss Whitehead has been named as having been in a local hotel with Mr. Twombly on July 28, giving him medical attention. The plaintiff seeks to show by the records that Miss Whitehead was at work in the Talbot mills at the time the defense claims she was in Lowell.

The proponent of the mill was brought in to testify, as were an overseer and two clerks of the mill who had dealings with the time sheets. All of them, for the defense, objected to the records going in on the ground that they were not the original copies. Judge Cox finally ruled that he believed the records were made in good faith and that they should be admitted. The plaintiff's counsel has intimated that great stress will be placed upon what the records show.

At one time during the trial today Mr. Perrigo was asked what were his

LOWELL ROTARY CLUB MEETING

Discussion of Baseball and Other Sports by Boston Newspaper Man

School Boys Sing Their Way Into Hearts of Local Rotarians

Future John McCormicks vied with a Boston newspaper sport writer in claiming attention at this afternoon's meeting of the Rotary club on Dutton street.

Michael Walsh and tiny Oliver Dion, short pants school leaguers, sang ditties dear to children's hearts that captured the fancy of the Rotarians from the start.

Hermon Nickerson, of the Boston Post sporting department, long a baseball expert and familiar with all the kings of the national game, in training fields, barnstorming and on the home grounds, gave an intimate story of happenings old and new, and predicted that Big Dan Johnson, baseball marquis extraordinary, was about to break all friendly relations with Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's final arbiter of all things in the discussion spotlight.

The rain and snow did not keep down today's attendance. More reports came in from the Charity ball, which isn't over yet, and an appeal was made for old phonograph records to re-stock the depleted music farders of the Boys' club musical equipment. Next Tues-

The body was found hanging at the end of a life line over the alleyway extending between Middlesex and Jackson streets by a passerby, who notified the police.

After the body was taken down it was removed to the funeral parlors

BREAKS JAIL AT LOS ANGELES

Woman Under Sentence of 10 Years to Life Imprisonment Makes Getaway

Saws Bars, Climbs Through Window, Drops to Roof to Building and Disappears

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—Clara Phillips climbed out of a window in the women's section of the county jail and escaped today. She was under a sentence of 10 years to life imprisonment, after conviction of the hammer murder of Alberta Meadows. She was held in the jail pending formulation of an appeal.

With the aid of several steel saws her escape was effected at 2 a. m., according to a report to the sheriff by the jailor. Belief was expressed that she had been aided by other inmates. Bars were sawed through and after crawling out the window, she dropped to the roof of an adjoining building, climbed down the fire escape, and disappeared.

The escape was not discovered by jail authorities for several hours. The matron in making rounds, saw the bed in Mrs. Phillips' cell vacant. The matron then discovered the sawed and twisted bars, and notified the jailer.

The former chorus girl, who three

IRISH FREE STATE TO COME INTO BEING AT MIDNIGHT TONIGHT

No Pomp or Ceremony to Mark Fulfillment of Treaty Made Between the British and Irish Governments—Full Administration of Ireland Already Turned Over to Provisional Government

LONDON, Dec. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—King George this evening gave royal sanction to the legislation setting up the Irish Free State as a dominion of the British empire.

LONDON, Dec. 5. (By the Associated Press.)—Without pomp or ceremony the Irish Free State will come into being after midnight tonight.

By a special order in council, the full administration of the country already has been handed over to the provisional government. Therefore, when the constitution comes into existence tomorrow, there will be no ceremony of any kind to mark the fulfillment of the treaty made between the British and Irish governments.

The Anglo-Irish treaty expires tomorrow when the provisional government will cease to function and the Free State government will officially take charge. LAUSANNE, Dec. 5.—(By the Associated Press) Turkey and Europe have apparently drifted so far apart on the great issues of the Near East conference that the pessimists have a fruitful field for unhappy prognostications of a complete collapse of the pour parlers and the resumption of war in southeastern Europe.

Such a culmination of the conference discussions could easily be argued as a strong possibility, but any such argument based on a reasonable hypothesis would leave out the fact

Short Subjects Introduce New Ideas for Photoplays

LADY DIANA MANNERS (LEFT) WAS KNOWN AS ENGLAND'S MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN BEFORE SHE ENTERED THE MOVIES. KATHERINE MACDONALD ENTERED THE MOVIES AND THEN WAS ACCLAIMED BY MANY AS AMERICA'S GREATEST BEAUTY.

By JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The short subject films point the way to the feature photoplays. The two-reel comedies have always been in advance of the multi-reel photoplay in the development of a distinctive form of expression. Now other short films, such as scenes, animated drawings and polite comedies, are showing more originality in subject and treatment than the bigger films.

These remarks arise from several hours devoted to previewing some new short subjects. Earl Hurd shows in a new series of one-reelers what novel effects can be gained with a combination of animated drawings and photography. I saw "Railroading." That is a whimsical tale of a boy and dog as his actors. These figures cut-up in a toy train and a real cat and a little chicken become involved in the plot.

At first this all seemed utter nonsense, but on reflection it appears that Hurd put himself in the attitude of a little child and wove a tale such as might be sketched on the walls of a nursery. It is a beautiful bit of imagery when considered in that light.

Max Fleischer in his "Out of the Inkwell" series employs the same scheme and is a bit more adroit with his work than Hurd. However, he doesn't look at the picture he creates through the eyes of a child. Robert Bruce also resorts to the fancies of a story-teller in "A Natural Born Idler," the latest of scenes. In this he introduces beautiful panoramas by having a nomad of the north tell about his various adventures.

Thus the camera shows a mirage of the desert, a lake in which the smallest trout is two feet nine inches long and an ocean in the mountains. The last episode presents the upper surface of a mighty cloud which breaks upon a mountain side like the ocean upon a rocky shore. These scenes of nature in unusual circumstances appear stranger than fiction, but Bruce introduces fiction to the story. The traveler visits a "blind spot" in the woods. In this spot everything becomes invisible in broad daylight.

Critics in England have acclaimed such trace pictures as these as the most artistic yet produced in America. Baby Peggy is being starred in a series of fairy-stories, the latest of which is "Little Red Riding Hood." I have not seen this film, but I have seen Baby Peggy and I've read "Little Red Riding Hood" several times. The film promises something far different than has yet been screened. It should suggest to some producer the filming of "Alice in Wonderland" in a very pretentious manner. That story could be better told on a screen than in a book. It would give the screen ample opportunity to show the vast descriptive powers of the camera. It would make a more unique film than "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari."

Defense Objects to Introduction of Time Sheets

feelings towards his wife at the present time. He replied that they were very affectionate.

It was brought out that on one occasion Perrigo was nailed inside of a piano box, which was placed upon an auto truck, and that he followed Mrs. Perrigo about in the depot section of the city, observing her movements through holes that had been bored in the box.

The session today was replete with conferences at the bench. The defense took repeated objections to the methods of the plaintiff's counsel with the result that the trial was delayed a great deal. According to present indications the trial will not be finished before tomorrow at the earliest.

The case of the records brought out many rapid exchanges between counsel. Yesterday, Parsonage, Highmore, of the Fall River mills was put on the stand and he testified that he had custody of the pay sheets since the time they were taken.

James H. Houle, an overseer in the mills, testified today that he took the time. Miss Isabella, daughter of Mr. Houle's clerk, testified that she copied the time sheet under the direction of Mr. Houle.

The question of admitting the records was responsible for a delay in the trial as it was necessary for the court to make many references to the law on the subject of admitting records. The defense counsel contended that the defendant was entitled to have the original records produced. The court said he thought the records had been made in good faith and that they should be allowed.

He cited as an example: "If I was on trial for my life and factory records were introduced to show I was working at the time a crime was committed, do you mean to say the records would not be in my favor?" Attorney Hogan, who is conducting the case at the present, replied the records would be in favor, but then brought up the questions of the original records. It was pointed out that the original records were never kept, but that the times were transcribed from originals in a form sheet.

The court finally admitted the records, saying that he believed the entries were made in good faith. Exceptions were taken, the court saying the defendant's rights.

Mr. Houle was then put back on the stand and was cross-examined by Atty. Hogan. Mr. Houle described minutely his duties in the mill. The witness said that without referring to the records, he wouldn't want to say that Miss Whitehead wasn't out for an hour on the afternoon of July 25.

Piano Box For Blind
James F. Reilly, a junk collector, was the next witness. He gave testimony of a most unusual kind. He said he was fixing a tire on Middlesex street when Perrigo came up and asked him if he wanted to do some work for him.

Reilly said that Perrigo asked him to get a piano box as a woman was coming to the city that he wanted to watch. He then testified that a piano box was obtained, taken to a barn and two holes bored in the side of it by means of a file and hammer. This took place on August 1, the day on which Mrs. Perrigo and Twombly were found in a local hotel.

According to the witness, Perrigo was placed in the piano box and the cover nailed on. The truck was then driven down to the railroad station. There Mrs. Perrigo was seen getting off a train. The truck was then detailed to follow Mrs. Perrigo. No questions were asked by the plaintiff. Sgt. Philip Dwyer was put on the stand. He was asked if anyone had called Mr. Twombly a liar at the hotel on August 1. The question was objected to and the objection sustained. Atty. Rogers withdrew the question.

Mr. Perrigo was again called to the stand. The following questions and answers followed.

Q—"As a result of a conversation you had in Manchester with a Mr. Bernard what did you do?"
A—"I came back to America."
Q—"What did you do then?"
A—"I kept my eyes open."
Q—"Did you come to Lowell on August 3 as the result of information you received from someone other than Mr. Twombly and Mrs. Morgan?"

A—"No."
Q—"Did you ever ask Mr. Twombly to go with you?"

FIELD BIG CELEBRATION

St. Elizabeth Branch of Irish National Foresters Observe Second Anniversary

A well attended meeting of unusual interest, followed by a social and dance tendered to members and their friends, marked the celebration of the second anniversary of the St. Elizabeth Branch of the Irish National Foresters in A.O.F. hall last evening. Chief Ranger Margaret McNulty presided at the meeting. Three new members were initiated and an equal number of applications for membership received and accepted. A communication, requesting the presence of seven delegates to represent the branch at the St. Patrick's day convention on Dec. 15, was received from the local United Irish societies, but action on this was deferred until the next quarterly meeting.

The social consisted mainly of dancing, in which a large number of friends were invited for the occasion, participated. Branch O'Neill Crowley was well represented and materially assisted in the arrangements. A feature of the evening was an exhibition of Irish step dancing by Misses McGovern and Shaughnessy, and Miss Ellen Murray and Mrs. McMahon. During an intermission in the program, a mystery package, donated by Mrs. Mary Balfrey, created much amusement.

Free chances for the package were distributed throughout the hall and the holder of the lucky number was Miss Margaret Handley. The mysterious prize, when revealed, turned out to be a pair of gent's hose imported from Ireland. Dancing was again resumed and continued until midnight.

The success of the affair was due in a large measure to the efforts of Miss Maria Markham, who had charge of the entertainment. Other socials are being planned to follow future meetings of the organization.

UNUSUAL SITUATION IN ARRESTED IN BOSTON

AUTO ACCIDENT

While driving his automobile through Adams street on November 28, Vincent K. Reardon of 35 Bridge street, Somerville, struck a little girl, who, he claims, ran from the sidewalk into the path of his machine. The child, who did not seem to be injured, ran away, but Reardon ran after her and caught her and attempted to take her to the hospital, but the little girl fought and kicked and managed to get away without making herself known. Seeing nothing could be done Reardon then continued his trip and forgot the incident.

Now as a result of the accident, Reardon is being threatened with criminal action for failure to report the accident, and accordingly he has had his counsel write a letter to Supt. Alderson of the local police department, setting forth the circumstances surrounding the accident and his reasons for not reporting. The letter to the superintendent, which has been written by William J. Shanahan, a Boston attorney, is as follows:

I wish to notify you on behalf of Vincent K. Reardon of my intention to report the accident which occurred on Wednesday last, about 4 o'clock, while driving in his Ford touring car on Adams street, a little girl ran into the sidewalk and into his automobile. The child, on picking herself up, scurried away and Mr. Reardon followed her and gathered her up in his arms, planning to take her to the hospital to determine what, if any injuries, she had received, and the child fought and kicked against him taking her and upon being set back on the ground she ran away, disappearing through an alleyway. Mr. Reardon followed in an effort to determine her identity, but lost sight of her.

To all appearances the child was unhurt, and he then drove home. He has just received a letter claiming injuries to the child and setting forth the possibility of a criminal action due to failure to report the accident.

I am, therefore, writing you, setting forth the facts as they lay in Mr. Reardon's mind as explaining the absence of a report by him to your department.

Man Arrested by Capt. Petrie is Charged With $1100 Furniture Larceny

Charged with the larceny of $1100 worth of furniture from a local store, Henry Albin of Boston was arrested by Captain David Petrie of the local criminal bureau and Inspector Connolly of the Boston force in a pool room in the Hub yesterday afternoon and brought to Lowell to face the charge. The furniture was stolen from a Lowell firm on Nov. 15 in a most peculiar manner. A young man went to the store and presented the manager a card and letter of recommendation stating that he was starting up house-keeping and wished to buy a few sets of furniture and pay on the installment plan. The total bill came to $1100, but a $200 cash payment reduced that figure to $900.

The fellow gave his name as Frank Barton of 7 Colwell avenue, this city, and the newly purchased furniture was delivered to that address. That was the last seen or heard of "Barton" until his arrest yesterday. When the installment man went to collect further payment, he found the house at 7 Colwell avenue deserted and the furniture gone.

The police were notified and Captain Petrie assigned to investigate. His inquiries led to Boston and a pool room on North street, where Albin was located, arrested and brought to Lowell. In police court this morning he pleaded not guilty and was released in bonds of $2000 for his appearance on Dec. 12.

TENEMENT BLOCK IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

The tenement block at 325-333 Merrimack street and owned by Canon Kelly was damaged by fire to the extent of several hundred dollars this forenoon. Fire started in the water tank closet on the first floor of the building, in the flat occupied by George Courtells and family and worked its way through the rooms.

When the blaze was discovered an alarm was sent in from box 14 and when the firemen reached the premises a portion of the roof was ablaze. Several lines of chemical were laid and after coying with the flames for about half an hour, the firebreakers succeeded in putting out the last spark, but not before ripping considerable of the ceiling in the kitchen, dining room and bed room.

Mrs. Courtells stated that members of the family had been smoking since Sunday, but no trace of fire could be located. This morning she heard the crackling of flames and upon investigating found a lively blaze in the water tank closet. District Chief Sullivan, who directed the work of the firemen, stated that in his opinion the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion.

MRS. OBENCHAIN FREED

Indictments Against Arthur C. Burch and Mrs. Obenchain Dismissed

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—Indictments against Arthur C. Burch and Madeline Obenchain, charged with the murder of J. Belmont Kennedy, young Los Angeles broker, were dismissed yesterday by Judge John W. Shenck on motion of District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine.

Mr. Woolwine moved dismissal of the indictments on the ground of insufficient evidence.

Paul Shenck, attorney for Burch, then swore out an insanity complaint against his client and Judge Shenck directed that he be committed to the psychiatric ward of the county hospital for observation.

The court's action left Mrs. Obenchain free to leave the county jail, which she announced she would do immediately.

She said she planned to leave Los Angeles but did not intend to go very far away.

WILL NOT VOTE TO APPROVE CLAIM

As chairman of the committee on claims of the city council, Smith J. Adams said today he would never vote to approve any claim in any amount submitted to the city as a settlement of the old and famous Hassam paving royalty suit, recently disposed in the federal court for $250.

Councilor Adams' interest in the case is two-fold and dates back 12 or more years, when he was a member of the board of aldermen. At that time he launched an investigation of the proposal of the Hassam company for every square yard of Hassam paving laid in Lowell and was directly responsible for blocking any such payments by the city.

"I understand the case has been disposed of with a settlement of $250 to the Hassam company," continued Councilor Adams. "I suppose the demand will come before the city in form of a claim, but as chairman of the claims committee, there is not a chance of it being approved for payment. Why should the city settle for even $250?" he asked. "There is no liability and never has been."

With these few pertinent remarks the councilor put his clippings back inside his pocket and closed the interview.

Mrs. Davidson Tells How She Recovered from a Condition Caused by Thin Blood

Many women suffer from headaches, nervousness and a general run-down condition because they do not keep their blood rich and red. Thin blood is the cause of much suffering that could easily be avoided for it is possible to build up the blood by the use of proper tonic treatment, good food and sunshine.

When the blood is built up many symptoms such as disturbed digestion, chills and sleeplessness often disappear quickly for the rich blood carries life and health to every part of the body.

"I was in a very nervous condition," says Mrs. Frank Davidson, of No. 132 Broad street, Auburn Me., "and I always felt tired. There were times when I could not sleep and I would get up in the morning all worn out. I had severe headaches and dizzy spells. My appetite was poor and after eating I had pains in my stomach. My blood was thin. I was always cold and had pains in my back."

"I did not get any better until on the recommendation of a friend who had been helped by them, I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I felt better in a few days and kept on until I had used two boxes. Now I feel better than I have in many years. My blood is richer and I am much stronger. The pains, headaches and dizziness are all gone. My digestion is good, I sleep and eat well. I am glad to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone needing a tonic."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are useful in anemia, or thin blood, nervousness and its more aggravated forms of sick headache, neuralgia, sciatica and neuritis. They give you strength and vigor and if you need this tonic you should get a 60-cent box from your nearest druggist today and begin the treatment.

Cuts Its Financial Resources

Down to the Bone

made it plain that the 108 temporary employees laid off last Saturday should return to work today and that for the balance of the year the departments coming under the board of public service will operate with a total personnel of upwards of 500 men.

While the street department was handsomely rewarded, the school department received only half of the amount it previously had said it would absolutely require for next year's operations. The payroll that falls due on the 8th, tomorrow, will be met, due on the 8th, Friday, will be met, ability to escape a municipal deficit at the end of the year even though every dime of December revenue is used to balance accounts.

Pays Back to Auditor Martin

The burden has been passed along to the city auditor to make ends meet somehow. December may produce $40,000 in receipts, but with almost a score of schools starting tomorrow, more money and with the school department only half cared for, there will be losses somewhere.

In its deliberations last night the finance committee did not consider any money not actually available in cash. After the meeting, the committee was left with the task of recognizing the appropriating of $136,000, thus wiping out the excess receipts, and dipping deep into prior revenue, it said. "Now, we will pass an order instructing the city auditor to balance accounts at the end of the year whenever he is necessary."

"Balance accounts with what?" asked City Auditor Daniel E. Martin, and no one could solve the little riddle. Prior to the meeting nearly 30 departments had presented estimates of money needed to place out the year, but with $36,000 going to streets and $40,000 to schools, the city was left out in the cruel world to shuffle along somehow, unaided and alone.

The meeting was attended by President Patrick J. Hagley of the council and Councilors Gallagher, McPadden, Moriarty, Chretien, Quennan, Mayor George H. Brown, Dennis J. Murphy, chairman of the public service board and Councilor Smith J. Adams, representing the finance committee.

The nub of the meeting was the group of 100-odd men laid off in the street department Saturday. Everyone wanted to see them return to work. Chairman Murphy said they would be reinstated next Monday providing the council voted the necessary money at the meeting Thursday night of this week. Councilor Quennan asked why they couldn't go back today and get their money later.

"That is satisfactory to me," said Mr. Murphy, "so long as the money will be forthcoming."

"We will get the money all right," said Mayor Brown.

"There is no doubt of that," commented President Hagley, "the councilors are all up for re-election just as you are, Mr. Mayor."

It was 8:15 o'clock when the committee was called into session.

Before any individual department was considered, Councilor Gallagher asked how much money as a whole is available.

City Auditor Daniel E. Martin said as of Dec. 1, the prior revenue account stands at $24,318.69 and excess receipts amount to $16,555.57. These are the only resources available at the present time. He spoke of surplus surplus, but the committee did not care to consider this source.

To the total amount available from prior revenue and excess receipts, $133,904.26 may be added $40,000 in anticipated receipts in December.

Councilor Gallagher suggested that the discussion be confined to only the actual amount of money available, thus leaving out the anticipated revenue of $10,000.

Mayor Brown expressed the belief that many departments actually do not need more money at this time, although he felt that schools and charity departments should be given immediate consideration.

In speaking of the street department the mayor said enough money should be voted to allow it to function with a complete working force, as of last Saturday, for the balance of the year.

IN SALEM BY THE SEA

Many Interesting Items Culled From Salem Paper Published in 1826

Old Salem days of long ago when clippers sailed the four seas and came home to port with tidings of world news and ideas with merchandise that reeked with the perfume of rare spices of the Orient and India and sunny Mediterranean isles, are brought to mind in an ancient newspaper just recovered from the dusty archives of a Lowell homestead and kindly loaned The Sun for perusal.

When the Essex Register—four dollars per annum and no papers discontinued until arrearages are paid—rattled off the forty-first number of Vol. XXVI down on Essex street opposite the old Merchants' bank in fair Salem, Mass., on May 22, 1826, Legion bonnets, striped Cuirassians, Denmark satins, black and blue twilled Bombazettes, striped jeans and Wilmington stripes were all the rage for summer wear in the old Bay State.

And the Essex Register—was Dame Fashion's leading arbiter on new styles as well as favorite newspaper in the Salem of the Java Head stories and sailing masters' wrangles made somewhat famous by our eminent young American novelist, Joseph Hergesheimer. A well known Lowell citizen, Prof. Frederic Bond, has just received for safekeeping an excellently preserved copy of the old Salem newspaper that was some newspaper in the days of 1826, before and afterward. It is a curiosity shop all by itself, although the old-fashioned type is so fine that you have to use a magnifying glass if you want to read it closely.

Punctuating first page prominent position, col. 3, "There is a deathless rite by one 'Alfred,' was unknown, who on May 2, 1826, penned a tribute to Phoebe of the 'Dumpling wheels.' Phoebe in just four verbal shunks of feverish heat and snow-clad windups, fairly dealt shafts of death-defying words to the raging winds in this dash of verse that also involves thunder-clouds, icy shores of Greenland and several other places where thermometers are unnecessary.

Down the column a sonnet to "Mary" taken bodily from "The Literary Casket" (flow gently to The Literary Digest) flows gently to "Sweet Afton" or the upper reaches of the Merrimack on a July afternoon. Mary is likened to a light breeze spreading its wings over the "chrysalis" (notice—accent on the "h" in "chrysalis") "The poem winds up gracefully:— "And I were blest if that were here." "Boston Bard" comes to bat in the third stanza close to bottom of col. 3, page 1, with an impromptu concerning "The Great and Good," ending his list with the frank statement that "Love and wine floats freedom's ark today!"

Departing from the poetry corner, the news columns compel inspection. There is the "latest news from Europe" dated April 18 in the issue of May 22. "The Turks were fighting the Greeks in those days, too, and the Register has word that a Greek fortress had been taken and the Greeks 'put to the sword.' Just like what we read about the other day over in Asia Minor. And war was very old indeed in the Near East in 1826, at that!"

In the senate at Washington, river bills and harbor improvements were still in fashion, everybody wanting money from Uncle Sam for various purposes in order to strengthen political fences just as usual right now. The "pois" were interested, too, for many "new public buildings" for Uncle Sam—and the "deer peepul"—back 100 years ago, with bills galore for "public improvements" with congressmen and senators having two fingers a piece in each fat-frosted appropriation pie.

Distress was reported in many manufacturing centers of England, thousands of women and their families being dependent upon public charity, as is the case today in the British Isles. Salem business men incorporated a new "mill dam corporation," and the medical men of the town were studying a brand of new imported leeches for use in surgical work.

Popular fancy turned to the new "electrics and riding school," opened May 2, 1826, in South Salem. Ipswich's "classical seminary" was flourishing, with Horry Wilbur, principal, and fathers and mothers carefully assured that the young daughters would be nicely protected at all times at Ipswich "with reasonable expectations." The bed post business in Salem was something thrillingly worth while in 1826, too, Kimball & Sargent, in bed posts, having a fine line of

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membrane, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

PLENTY OF GOLD ON TAP FOR CHRISTMAS

The Christmas givers who like to distribute gold dollars or "yellow boys" of higher denominations, but who have been barred from banking house gold reserve cellars for three or four years when seeking shiny Xmas gifts of the monetary kind, are happy once more.

Announcement was made this afternoon at national banking institutions of the city that the federal reserve board has lifted "the ban" and gold may be used "to the limit" to fill the demands of the gift-distributors.

There is some significance in this announcement according to an official of the Union National bank. The reserve board did not put the ropes on this custom of giving away gold at Christmas for any small and trivial reason. When the edict went out about four years ago, every piece of gold in sight was needed to use as a foundation for the paper money that had to be issued in tremendous quantities to finance the "boom" that ran during the war and for about two years following the armistice.

During the past 15 months, according to a local banker, the paper money thus issued has been gradually retired under Uncle Sam's system of "elastic currency." Whereas in 1920 the gold reserve was down to near 10 per cent. of the reserve on banks' liabilities, it has recovered since then to almost 50 per cent. Lowell bankers say there will be plenty of real gold for all regular bank patrons and others who may want some to give away at Christmas. It can be obtained in the usual way.

There is a shortage of actual new paper money in some years, but none this year, bankers say. Almost anyone will be able to get all the nice clean one, two or five and ten-dollar bills they want any time for the Christmas rush, and larger denominations will be had, too, of course, if the giver feels inclined to go higher.

assorted columns in patterns to suit the most fastidious bedroom occupant. In fact, bedsteads in the old days in Salem were the most important part of home furnishings, particularly when you were able to get some of those extra fine British sheetings, a few Scotch "terrys" and one or two "satins" and a real bed ticking of "sagebrush" Indian checks.

The only pathetic item in the 1826 Salem Register that tells little, but probably covers a multitude of deep regrets, is John Jacob Caldwell's little "notice" on page 4 of the Register, where John Jacob is forced to state that his wife Esther has "behaved in an unbecoming manner, and he must perform admissibly all persons to refrain from harboring Esther or trusting her on John Jacob's account," as he refuses to pay "any more bills of Esther's contracting."

Oh, rest and Joe Chandler of Hamilton street, had 35 barrels of round hard cider to sell, and the price was high!

Do folks eat more Bond?

The answer to above question will appear in this space tomorrow.

Yesterday's Question: "Food-value"—what is it?

The Answer: In practical terms, food-value is that proportion of your food which you finally assimilate and turn into energy, flesh and bone. The fact that Bond Bread is high in calories does not mean so much as the fact that it is high in food-value. In other words, the big point about Bond Bread is that it is both exceptionally nourishing and also exceptionally digestible. Those two points together mean food-value at its utmost.

Declines to Be Drawn Into Controversy

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, declined today to be drawn into a controversy with President Ban Johnson of the American league because of President Johnson's action in calling the annual meeting of the league in Chicago, on Dec. 13, a day in advance of the scheduled joint meeting of the major leagues which Commissioner Landis had scheduled for New York, Dec. 14. Commissioner Landis declared that insofar as he was concerned, the joint meeting would be held as scheduled, but he was not prepared to say whether the American league club owners would participate.

10 Teams Tied in Six Day Bike Race

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Ten of the 16 teams of bicyclists that started the 33rd annual six day race at Madison Square Garden, at midnight were tied at 589 miles at the 27th hour early today. Four others were a lap behind. Walker and Lorenz, two of the original starters, dropped out last night. Rutt, partner of Lorenz, and McBeath, Walker's partner, formed the new combination leaving 14 teams in the race. Belloni was leading at 3 a. m. The previous record was 598 miles, one lap, made by Lawson and Drobach in 1914.

PONZI VERDICT STARTS NEW CITY HOLDS ELECTION

JURY REFORM EFFORT

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Appointment of a committee of the Boston Bar Association to investigate jury service in Suffolk county and throughout the state with a view to obtaining remedial legislation, where abuses are found, was announced yesterday by President Arthur P. Hays, attorney-general.

Replying to an attack by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen on the verdict of the jury that acquitted Charles Ponzi of state charges of larceny and conspiracy to commit larceny in superior court late Friday night, Philip Imbush, foreman of the jury, issued a statement last night in which he said:

"Ponzi's acts in our judgment were the acts of a man who had at the time in criminal intent done any wrong, and therefore was innocent because he acted in absolute good faith."

Answering a statement of the attorney-general that it was hard to understand how the jury could acquit Ponzi after he had pleaded guilty in the United States court to using the mails with intent to defraud, Imbush declared that it was established that Ponzi had done so under pressure of his counsel and his wife, but that at all times declared his innocence.

CONGRESSMAN BEEDY IS WELL KNOWN HERE

An interesting feature in connection with the visit to this city of Hon. Carroll L. Beedy, United States congressman from Maine, who is to be the speaker at the chamber of commerce appreciation dinner to be given in the Auditorium, Thursday, December 14, is that he is well known locally to several people.

Congressman Beedy while attending Bates college, Lewiston, Me., was well known to John A. Hunsnewell, local manager for the Lowell Electric Light corporation. In speaking of the friendship existing between him and Beedy, Mr. Hunsnewell said that the present congressman was very popular among all the students and was noted as the orator of the college. "Beedy was a student at Bates," Mr. Hunsnewell, "because his delivery was perfect and touched with just the right kind of 'pop.' He was always very impressive."

The committee in charge of the dinner held another meeting this afternoon to make the arrangements. Inasmuch as this will be the first dinner to be held in the main hall of the Auditorium there are many details which have to be worked out for the first time, such as for instance as the placing of tables.

Harry T. Graves has plotted out a cable arrangement for the committee with a seating capacity of 550. This includes the stage.

FREIGHT WRECK TIES UP TRAFFIC AT TAUNTON

TAUNTON, Dec. 5.—While switching in the Tremont street freight yard of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad at Taunton, this morning at 6.05, four freight cars were derailed. Two of the cars derailed across the track and tore up the track for some distance, and completely blocked all traffic. The 6.20 train for Providence was cut out. The 6.17 and the 6.53 for Boston were consolidated and sent via Middleboro at 7.35. The boat train known as the 7.37, was sent via Middleboro. The 8.09 for Boston was sent via Middleboro. At 8.35 the track was cleared. The cars which were derailed were connected with the Taunton-New Bedford freight.

MERRIMACK RIVER BAPTIST ASSOCIATION

Excellent attendance of members from numerous county cities and towns marked the rally of the Merrimack River Baptist association, held yesterday afternoon and last evening at the First Baptist church, Lowell. Lawrence, Methuen, Billerica, Tewksbury and Andover were largely represented.

Among the speakers were Rev. Joseph Robbins, foreign secretary of the American Baptist Missionary society; Rev. F. Peterson, Rev. W. E. Wadsworth and Rev. Arthur T. Brown. Rev. Mr. Robbins' subject was "Following the Pioneers." He described a round-the-world trip taken by himself and visits to various mission fields. He declared that many American mission workers endure untold hardships in order to spread the word of the gospel, but perform their work for humanity without flinching.

He called upon the loyal Baptist brotherhood to support the missions regularly. The rally day program included a symposium, "The Cycle of Prayer," a conference led by Rev. Dr. Peterson, an inspirational address by Rev. Mr. Adams; supper at 6.30 o'clock, then one-minute addresses by the presidents of the young people's societies, Dr. Peterson as chairman. A song service led by Dr. Brooks of the Dudley Street Baptist church, Boston; discussions by visiting clergymen on "Winning Souls" and "Working Units of the Baptist association," winding up with Rev. Mr. Robbins' address on "Following the Pioneers."

The Lowell rally was the fifth of its kind to be held and one of the 24 to be held all over the state in the coming months.

STUCK BY AUTOMOBILE Paul Cassidy, aged 3 years, and residing in the Rogers block in Gorham street, sustained a painful injury to his head yesterday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile, operated by Edward D. Peterson, of 235 East Merrimack street. The accident occurred in Gorham street, when, so Peterson claims, the little fellow ran from behind an auto, into the path of the machine. The boy was treated at his home.

Gardner Holds Its First Municipal Election Today—Hot Campaign

Barber and Store Proprietor Candidates for Mayor—Other City Elections

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—A new city made its formal appearance today when Gardner held its first municipal election. There are now 29 cities in Massachusetts, of which 20 selected their city governments today. Sixteen will vote next Tuesday and one, Waltham, on Dec. 19. It is an off year in Cambridge and Somerville, which have biennial elections.

The first municipal campaign in Gardner has been hotly waged, the candidates for mayor, without party designations being Chester P. Pearson, proprietor of a department store and Nelson Beaudet, a barber, who has been a selectman of the town for six years and at present is chairman of the board. The population of Gardner in the 1920 census, was 16,371.

The other cities electing today are Brockton, Chicopee, Fall River, Fitchburg, Gloucester, Haverhill, Holyoke, Leominster, Marlboro, New Bedford, Newburyport, Northampton, Peabody, Pittsfield, Quincy, Salem, Springfield, Taunton and Westfield.

In Brockton and Marlboro, it is the last annual election, the biennial plan going into effect next year. The mayor's term of office holds over for another year in Chicopee, Leominster, Newburyport, Salem and Taunton, but new city governments will be chosen today.

The Shoe Workers' Protective union, with a large membership in Haverhill shoe factories, where labor disputes have been in progress for a long time, openly entered the municipal campaign in that city, supporting Mayor Parkman B. Flinders for re-election over Dr. W. D. McFee.

New Bedford has three candidates for mayor, John F. Hatch, Jr., and Edward R. Hathaway opposing Mayor Walter H. B. Remington. Another three-cornered contest is in Pittsfield, where the candidates are Charles W. Power, republican; Patrick J. Moore, democrat, and Albert D. Reinhardt, independent.

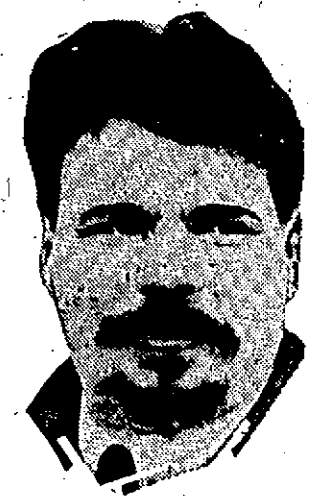

Rev. Robert A. Bucknam, pastor of the Second Congregational church in South Peabody, is a candidate for mayor of Peabody, where Mayor William A. Shea seeks re-election for a third term.

TO NEGOTIATE WAGE SCALE WITH MINERS

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Union bituminous coal operators of the United States, gathered here to decide on some method for negotiating a wage scale with the soft coal miners next January, today went into their second session, their last separate meeting being going into joint conference with the miners.

When today's session was called, no plan or method had been agreed upon for presentation in the joint conference opening tomorrow. On the outcome of the joint conference depends to a great extent the possibility of another nation-wide bituminous coal strike beginning in April, 1923.

LOYAL WAREHOUSE LODGE N. G. Charles R. Allen occupied the chair at last evening's meeting of Loyal Warehouse lodge, 1102, I. O. O. F., M. L., which was held in Odd Fellows building, Middlesex street. One new member was elected by ballot and two were initiated. Routine business was transacted and it was announced that the election of officers will take place at the next meeting, which will be held on the evening of Dec. 18.

"ILIDOR" A BAPTIST

With the avowed intention of becoming an American citizen and joining the Baptist church, Serge Trufanov, the Russian monk known as Ilodor, reached New York from his native land. Ilodor was an intimate of Rasputin and a friend of the czar. He gave the czar and royal family their last meal before their assassination.

REPORT OF PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT OFFICE

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—The state public employment office announced today that its activities for November showed a falling off from the previous month but a substantial gain over the corresponding month of last year. During the month there were 20 per cent. fewer calls from employers than in October, 13 per cent. fewer positions were filled and seven per cent. fewer persons applied for employment. As compared with November, 1921, there was an increase of 45 per cent. in employers' calls, an increase of 38 per cent. in positions filled and a decrease of 24 per cent. in applicants for employment.

The demand for unskilled labor decreased somewhat with a larger supply of applicants than at any time in the last six months. There was a slight decrease in the demand for skilled tradesmen. The supply of boys for errands, offices and factories, did not equal the demand.

The general demand for women workers decreased considerably. There are still, however, about three employers for every applicant for housework.

AT THE MIDDLESEX WOMEN'S CLUB

Mrs. Gordon Brinley, wearing costume of the 17th century, entertained members of the Middlesex Women's club yesterday afternoon with delightful dramatic interpretations of Chaucer. Although the English of the Chaucer period is not easy to follow and is vastly different from that spoken today, Mrs. Brinley overcame it by clear explanations of the differences in pronunciation. Chaucer wrote in London dialect and made it the standard tongue of the country. Naturally, she read much from "The Canterbury Tales" and the entertainment was greatly enjoyed.

LOYAL WAREHOUSE LODGE N. G. Charles R. Allen occupied the chair at last evening's meeting of Loyal Warehouse lodge, 1102, I. O. O. F., M. L., which was held in Odd Fellows building, Middlesex street. One new member was elected by ballot and two were initiated. Routine business was transacted and it was announced that the election of officers will take place at the next meeting, which will be held on the evening of Dec. 18.

It must be not only new, but explanatory when it comes to detail required. And so the Whelan orders went out today covering all the fine points for the pupils of this new school to juggle with.

When Superintendent Whelan of the local division gets the blackboard out and locates the pointing stick, he will be ready for all comers in the query division. But first off the instructor is going to acquaint old and new snow-crushers just how to handle the new plows. There will be instruction in lifting sweepers and dropping them, cleaning out the brushes, removing obstructions of all kinds in front of the sweepers and under them; what to do in case of bad jams in and out of town; how best to sweep streets that are congested with traffic of many kinds, and other things that cover the main points of traffic congestion elimination.

The Eastern local division this year has the best snow-fighting equipment.

Town Hall and Valuable Records Burned

NORFOLK, Dec. 5.—Fire destroyed the town hall early today. The building, built in 1797, was used as a church until 1870. Valuable records were destroyed by the fire, the cause of which was unknown. The loss was placed at $40,000. Fire departments from nearby towns aided in battling the fire.

Elected Mayor of Settlement

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—John S. McGroarty, author and newspaper writer, was a mayor today, but of nothing. Tujunga, a settlement in the Verdugo Hill near here, unable to get help from the sheriff to curb automobile speeders, held an election on two propositions. One was that Mr. McGroarty be elected mayor, the other that certain territory become the incorporated town of Tujunga.

AMERICAN CHARGE CALLS ON GREEK MINISTER

ATHENS, Dec. 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Jefferson Caffery, American charge d'affaires, has made his first call on M. Rentis, acting foreign minister of the new government.

Mr. Caffery denied rumors that diplomatic tension existed between the United States and Greece as a result of recent events in this country.

The rumors were strengthened by the presence of an American destroyer at Phaleron.

It is said that a destroyer is to be stationed at Phaleron to ensure wireless communication with Constantinople, for it is feared that the Turks may obtain control of the cable. Regular communication between Athens and Constantinople is essential not only for official business but to enable American relief organizations to communicate with each other. The relief work elicits the deepest gratitude here.

MAN ARRESTED ADMITS LARCENY

A young man who gave the name of Harry Wilson, his age as 28, and his home as Troy, N. Y., was arrested today by Lieut. Maher and Sergt. Dwyer, and booked at the police station on a charge of larceny.

The attention of the officers was attracted to Wilson in Middlesex street shortly before 10 o'clock when he was endeavoring to roll an overcoat. They questioned him at length and not being satisfied with his answers, escorted him to the station, where, they claim, he admitted stealing the coat from a room occupied by a man named Whittier at 78 Worthen street. When searched at the station Wilson had in his pocket a fountain pen, which he claimed he took from Whittier's room. It was found that Wilson came here last Sunday and hired a room at 76 Worthen street. He will be arraigned in district court tomorrow morning.

LOCAL COAL DEALER GETS HANDSOME BUCK

From a splendid hunting ground just off old Dunstable road in Tyngsboro, came tidings this morning of the first returns of the open season on deer in the Lowell territory.

John H. Preston, the coal dealer, next night shot a handsome 226-pound buck of the 8-point variety. The Lowell coal man used a double-barreled shot gun and fired but one shot at a fair distance.

In a hurry from Dracut to North Chelmsford, taking in the county woodlands and fields away from human habitation, another hunter, George Cutler of North Chelmsford, captured a small doe on his Monday outing with easy trailing.

Numerous other hunters left the city early today, hoping the snow would stick long enough to make tracking good for real sport.

Representations by Italy's See LAUSANNE, Dec. 5. (By the Associated Press)—Representations were made to the New East conference today by the Holy See on behalf of the Constantinople Christians.

Monsieur Magliani, the nuncio of the Catholic church in Switzerland, presented a communication to the president of the conference asking that prompt and efficacious methods be adopted to protect the various Christian populations of Constantinople, whose situation the communication stated had become almost alarming.

"Our cellar smell has gone for good"

"Some cellars never seem to smell just right, no matter how much they are cleaned. I know ours didn't for years. I am so fussy about things like that. I made Frank's life miserable about it."

"Of course, he did everything—sprayed around with horrid-smelling powders and messy mixtures. He even had a man come in and whitewash the walls again. But that indescribable, damp, musty odor refused to budge."

"Then, one day, Janice Colt told me of the wonderful things Sylpho-Nathol had done in her house."

"Sylpho-Nathol is 4½ times stronger than carbolic acid—so you can imagine what it does to germs. It is safe to have about, too—the druggist says it is no more dangerous than a cake of scouring soap. And it doesn't roughen or hurt your skin one bit. You'll like its faint, pleasant odor, I know. Just buy a bottle and see for yourself."

"It's a pleasure to go into our cellar, because it destroys the germs that are in dust and dirt. I pour it down the sink drains—because it keeps such places free from the slightest trace of odors. It has made me forget that there is such a thing as a garbage can."

Lord Decies, the husband of Vivian Gould.

Lord Carson alone, whose influence was mainly responsible for the failure to settle the Irish question in 1914 and who has throughout his political career been the greatest opponent of home rule, persisted to the very end in his role of "last ditcher" even when such traditional anti-home rule rulers as the Marquis of Lansdowne and the Duke of Devonshire had gracefully yielded to the government view and resolved to give Ireland a chance to prove her sincerity under new conditions.

Devonshire frankly confessed that the short month in which he has been dealing with the Irish affairs in the new government had entirely converted him to the view that Ireland would really "deliver the goods" and he rejoined Lord Carson for his denigratory speech, which could only inflame passion and do harm.

Healy Called Good Choice
Even the appointment of Timothy Healy as governor-general of the Irish Free State, which is momentarily expected to be announced officially, is on rejection recognized as an auspicious event.

When Mr. Healy's name was first mentioned it was received with astonishment and some incredulity. When a governor-generalship is in question the British mind turns naturally in the direction of some titled personage. Now it is admitted the appointment of Mr. Healy would be singularly appropriate.

In the first place, Mr. Healy throughout his political career has been one of the strongest opponents of British connection, and therefore cannot be suspected of the slightest sympathy with British views antagonistic to Ireland.

Secondly, his appointment would link the Free State with all previous phases of the home rule struggle, besides being one of the greatest lights of the Parnell movement, he is connected with still earlier struggles, by reason of his relationship to T. D. Sullivan, author of "God Save Ireland."

Moreover, Kevin O'Higgins, minister of home affairs, who plotted the constitution through the Dail Eireann, is Mr. Healy's nephew, and Mr. Healy's exceptional intellectual and legal gifts undoubtedly have been at the disposal of the new Irish ministers, and are expected to prove invaluable to the new government in its difficult initial stages.

Historic Meeting
HOLYHEAD, Wales, Dec. 5. (By the Associated Press)—An historic meeting occurred here last evening. It was between the first president of the Irish Free State and the first governor-general.

William Cosgrave, president of the Dail Eireann, accompanied by Richard Mulcahy, minister of defense, crossed from Dublin to meet Timothy Healy on his return from London where he had been in connection with his appointment to the governor-generalship. Cosgrave warmly congratulated Mr. Healy and all returned to Dublin together this morning.

President Cosgrave declared in an interview that the situation in Ireland was well in hand and that he had high hopes that the troubles of the Irish people were at an end. He said a union of the north and south could not long be delayed inasmuch as the line dividing the two sections was unnatural. The president added that the appointment of Mr. Healy was undoubtedly popular among all classes in Ireland. He said the execution of Erskine Childers had been received with calmness and fortitude. As an evidence of the rapid improvement of conditions in Ireland President Cosgrave said that the past year had shown a large increase in exports as compared with 1921.

How I Cured My Catarrh

TOLD IN A SIMPLE WAY. Without Apparatus, Inhalers, Harmful Drugs, Smoke or Electricity.

HEALS DAY AND NIGHT
It is a new way. It is something absolutely different; no lotion, spray or sickening drugs; no water in the nose; no confinement in the home; something healthful. You do not have to wait and linger and pay out a lot of money. I will gladly tell you how I am not a doctor, but I am cured and my friends are cured, and you can be cured. Your suffering will stop at once like magic. I am free. You can be free. My catarrh was filthy and loathsome. It made me ill. It dulled my head. It undermined my health and was weakening my will. The having coughing, spitting made me shudder to all my foul breath and disgusting habits made even my loved ones avoid me socially.

But I found a cure and I am ready to tell thousands of other sufferers that CAMPHOROL cured me of catarrh of nose and throat.—Mrs. E. Anderson, Pleasantville Terrace, N. J.

LOWELL FIVE WINS OUT

Lew's Quintet Scores Victory
From Colonials of Boston
—Score 16 to 6

The Lowell Five formally opened its basketball season last night by winning over the Colonials of Boston at the Crescent rink by the score of 16 to 6.

The game was a great defensive exhibition with science and effective defensive play featuring the work of the Lowell Five. The Colonials made up of some of the leading exponents of the game in this section, players who have been at the game for a number of years, and all showed a thorough knowledge of the many tricks of the sport.

The players went at it slowly, working a "rolling" game, and scored up as play progressed. The third period was replete with fast and clever work with Lowell showing the better form. It was not until the last ten minutes of play that the winner was determined. Up until that period it was nip and tuck, but a spectacular rally by the Lowell Five was productive of the desired result.

Neither team scored in the first session, though both outfits threatened on a number of occasions. The second session the players had better luck and Lowell scored three baskets while the visitors succeeded in registering a basket. The Colonials were downed five within the hour while the Lowell Five was able to satisfy with a lone one.

James Keenan of Lowell scored the first basket of the evening. It was the first basket of the game coming shortly after the second period got under way. It was a thriller and came while the Lowell Five was downed five within the hour while the Lowell Five was able to satisfy with a lone one.

After the first session the teams went at it a little faster in the second session, with Keenan being the first to register. He put it up a little later. While Frank Murphy put the visitors in the lead with his spectacular shot from the center of the cage, they then came through the Lowell Five and the period ended 6 to 4 in Lowell's favor.

Frank Murphy tied it up for the second time as the Lowell Five got the ball. After they went to the offense and after some brilliant dribbling, ducking, skiffing and speedy work, succeeded in throwing two into the basket. After followed with one and Keenan, who started the scoring also ended it by scoring two in a row. The lineup and summary:

Miller Brothers Play Leading Role

In Gridiron Record of Notre Dame

The success of Notre Dame football has been credited to many causes, among which are the Miller brothers.

What the Five Brothers are to Notre Dame is to the Smith Brothers as to the Miller brothers to Notre Dame football.

The family has been reduced to a chemical formula by Notre Dame coaches. A coach will look over his prospects and then decide how much Miller he needs—after which the call goes to Defiance, O., and an comes the speed package.

In 1906 a good team needed a half-back to be great. The first Miller to play was made. "Red" Miller is now the supervisor of Notre Dame football tradition.

He played four years on the squad, captained the 1902 team, which defeated Michigan at the height of Wolverine glory. He was the greatest half-back Notre Dame ever knew.

In 1911 Ray Miller was added to the team and played two years. Walter came after the war, the third brother Miller, and played fullback for two seasons.

The night in which Knute Rockne found himself at the beginning of the present season is fairly well known. It happened that he faced a heavy schedule without a team—that was back to the great. The first Miller to play was made. "Red" Miller is now the supervisor of Notre Dame football tradition.

A. H. HORNSBY

Forty-seven years ago A. H. Hornsby, 75 years old, of St. Paul, Minn., introduced football to the middle west in Chicago, where he organized the old Chicago Football Club.

Hornsby took part in the first games ever played by the Chicago Football Club.

According to the "dope" supplied by President George M. Merriam, club of the Chicago Football Club, the main event on Thursday night is a game between the Chicago Football Club and the Chicago Football Club.

Dave Shade Is Credit to Boxing Game

DAVE SHADE PLAYING "HORSE" WITH HIS SON, BILLY

Here is Dave Shade, one of the leading contenders for the welterweight title, in a new role, playing "horse" with his son, Billy.

Dave Shade is the most successful of the "Three Fighting Shades." Many of the experts are of the opinion that he will win the welterweight crown from Mickey Walker the first time he is given a crack at the new champion.

Dave Shade is a credit to the profession. When his fighting days are over, it won't be necessary to put on any benefits for him. He has just purchased a beautiful home in one of the fashionable suburbs of New York. In addition he boasts a fat bank roll.

When not in the gymnasium preparing for a bout, or actually porting in the ring, Dave can usually be found at home. The bright lights of Broadway mean nothing to Dave Shade.

COACH BRODERICK QUILTS HAVERHILL

HAVERHILL, Dec. 5.—R. William Broderick, the first baseball coach of the Haverhill high school football team, announced last night his resignation to become football coach and manager of the Haverhill team. He will take up his duties as drawing master on February 1, 1923, and will coach the Salem squad next fall. Gov. Allen Says Business of Being Labor Leader "a Great Industry"

Declares There Are 150,000 Paid Secretaries of War Working for Unions

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 5.—Gov. Henry J. Allen, speaking before the National Presbyterian Laymen's conference, denounced the industrial court law and criticized labor agitators and strike leaders. "The business of being a labor leader," he asserted, "is a great industry." "There are 150,000 paid secretaries of war," he asserted, "working for the unions. They drain the labor organizations of $50,000,000 every year. They actually oppose the industrial court because they live on labor warfare. They are afraid of the Kansas industrial court."

William Hiram Foulkes of New York, general secretary of the New Era movement of the Presbyterian church, declared that he takes gratification in writing labor agitators, an alien rabble shall not destroy.

HEARD DR. PAYSON SMITH SIGNS OF CHRISTMAS

Commissioner of Education
Principal Speaker at Low-
ell Congregational Club

Dr. Payson Smith, Massachusetts commissioner of education, the principal speaker at the 125th regular meeting of the Lowell Congregational club held at the Elliot Union Congregational church last evening, declared that "one of the greatest problems of the day in the schools as well as in all industrial and human relations is to find the best means of cultivating the art of minding our own business."

picture theatre have an important educational responsibility—that they must be studied so that they may displace the responsibilities more effectively. He further declared that the "schools of today are loaded down with extra responsibilities with all sorts of extra funds and reforms that detract from the efficiency of that for which they were intended."

Before the address there was a social hour in the upper church previous to supper which was served in the vestry at 6:45. All the women of the church aided in preparing the bountiful repast under the leadership of Mrs. Frank Knapton and Mrs. Louis A. O'Neil as chairmen. The women of the church acted as waitresses.

President Charles L. Randall of the club introduced Miss Edna Lawrence of Andover, a student in the senior class at the State Normal school, who sang a group of negro spirituals. Secretary Louis Alexander read the minutes of the last meeting and Rev. John G. Lovell read a report from the home work committee. Haven G. Hill responded for the membership committee, and then Miss Lawrence sang an original group of songs that were greatly enjoyed.

Reference was made to "Educational Week" before President Randall introduced Dr. Smith, whose subject was "Current Problems in Education." The commissioner told of the numerous "educational" problems of public education, rolling one-fifth of the population of the state.

He urged greater support of the schools large and small, but declared the acts of those "higher educators of the land" who would place too many burdens upon children. He declared that children of the elementary and secondary schools would be much better off if they were "in a refined home atmosphere five nights of the week." He said it wasn't the job of the public school, for instance, to regulate the dress and facial adornments of the high school girl—the home should carry such responsibility.

Referring again to the elementary schools, Dr. Smith said: "The two greatest problems are: First, to give children a mastery of the tools of education; that is, the three R's, supplemented by music and art as a means of expression; and second, to help the children to establish right mental, moral and physical habits for the future. I hope some day we may provide a thorough physical program that be carried out where it will do the most good. The sports program should give all the boys and girls a chance. In colleges and secondary schools the stadium has done a lot to hurt athletics and sports in their true sense, as it has commercialized them, and has made them vital for their own sake. Every boy should participate in all games as far as possible."

THE MERRIMACK RIVER HEARING

The hearing on Merrimack river improvements, which was to have been held today before the board of army engineers as a result of arrangements conducted by Congressmen John Jacob Rogers, has been indefinitely postponed.

Until late yesterday afternoon, Mr. Rogers expected the hearing would take place and he had been attended by a number of Lowell citizens, including representatives of the chamber of commerce, who would urge the board not to approve the adverse report made by the local army engineers which would prevent the river development that Lowell so ardently advocates. Telegrams have been sent to the army board asking for a postponement until Lowell's representatives may be heard and this has been granted.

Lawrence citizens will be heard from some time in January.

Yuletide Bells Jangling, in Appleton Street—Doings
at the Postoffice

Old Santa has been calling up Lowell branch headquarters on Appleton street, and all queries are freely answered. Business at the local office has been steadily increasing, Postmaster Dellella says, a healthy improvement showing on the November summaries.

The Christmas bells are not jangling very loudly, but Yuletide emblems in printed form advising Uncle Santa's customers what to do and what not to do, are on the way, with a small advance consignment arriving yesterday and brightening up the postoffice corridors when attaches posted up merry little mottoes:

"Say Xmas With a Postal Money Order"

The cards are neatly designed on pale yellow hangers, bearing a picture of smiling Santa, a few bells here and there, with the usual Christmas in evidence and a nice green holly border with familiar decorative berries. The Xmas cards show the way to the windows where Uncle Santa's expert vendors of everything for sale in the mailing business are beginning to get into training.

Postmaster Work's Report

The annual report of Postmaster-General Hubert Work has arrived. The chief advocates the public ownership of all postoffices in the land, believing that this policy would relieve the government of much of its present housing congestion.

It would also make for financial economy, since rentals of more than $12,000,000 are now being paid over annually without tangible return. This money could be invested in property of a permanent value, as government-owned buildings are free from taxation, while the government as a lessee must meet its tax bills like anyone else.

Mr. Work also advocates the increasing of interest rates on postal savings from 2 to 3 per cent and the rate on postal savings bonds from 2½ to 3½ per cent.

Lowell postal employees who have been long in the service of Uncle Sam, will be interested to know that Mr. Work favors the establishment of a system of pensions for postal employees who have been in the service more than 30 years, a reclassification of departmental employees, salary adjustment to permit full pay for overtime, authorization for postal officials to accept up to 2½ miles in length maintenance of a guaranty fund derived from assessments levied upon postal officials accountable for funds and property to make good losses from the failure of such officials to properly perform their duties and to take the place of public land holding system.

The postmaster-general also approves of the suggestion made to him some time ago that additional postage be placed on improperly or insufficiently addressed mail and also the extension of insurance and delivery delivery postage to third-class mail.

Neglect to properly address letters and parcels costs the public more than $125,000 during the year, but matter sent to the "dead letter" office decreased 16 per cent.

SNOW KING'S ADVANCE AGENT ARRIVES

The advance agent of the Snow King arrived in Lowell early this morning with sample cases apparently filled with non-durable goods of the selective winter variety, but the demand was poor.

The weather was actually too warm for distributing frigid goods, over the kind exhibited, and the dispensing agencies of the weather maker higher up failed to arouse enthusiasm even among humans of the small boy variety.

The weather disturbance was over the upper lakes' region last night and moved rapidly northeastward, over the Merrimack valley it brought snowflakes, large and flaky, of the quick-melting variety. At the same time, a lot of it came down, just enough to start the big snow plows scurrying over the hills from the handy summer storage barns.

Supt. Whelan issued orders early, as usual Two of the new sweepers and one new shear plow, oiled up and ready, took the lions for the trips about the town and outskirts. The work was easy, although over the big plows of the double and single-trail type, some of them of the combination sweeper type, were held in reserve for a big blow.

The first plows went out at 7:30, and were operated most of the morning. The sweepers were necessary to keep the slush from sticking early in the day, and to switch for a freeze tonight with the slush left on the roads, would cause trouble.

The rail-sweeping operations were conducted as far out as Gregoire's and out to Wilmington on the far lines, with the usual trip on the Lawrence rails. No trouble was experienced anywhere and our service was nearly on time as a rule.

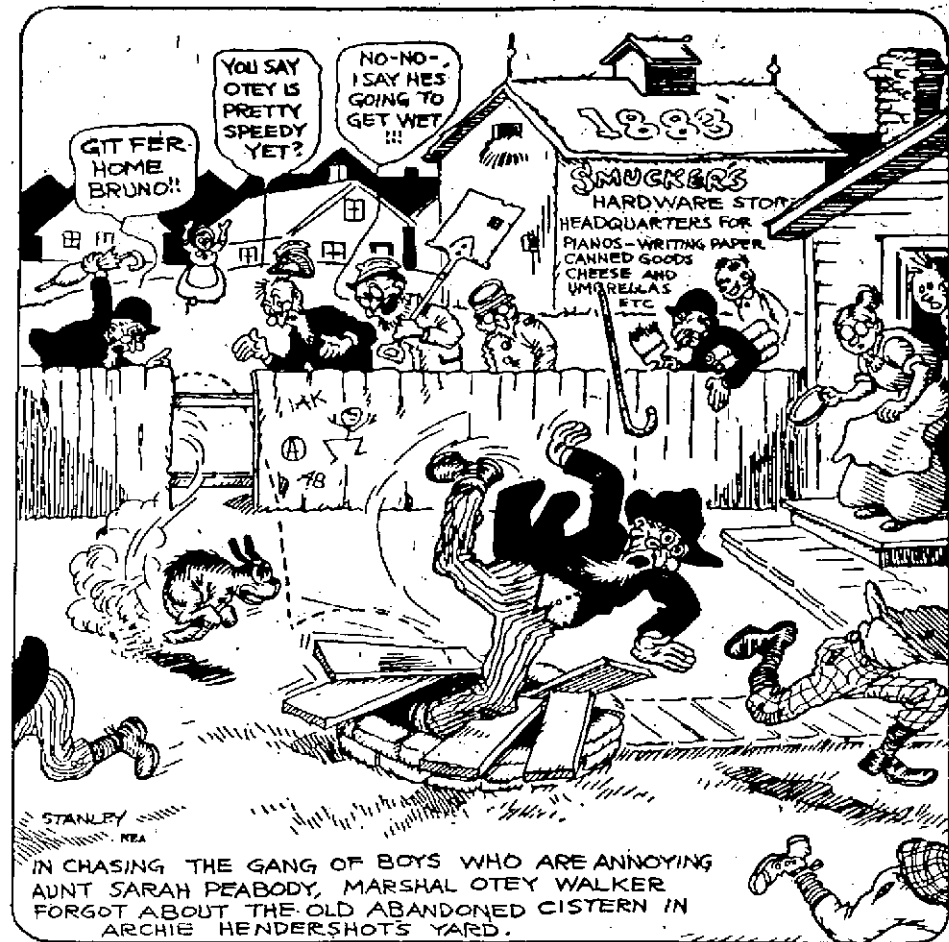

Wednesday may be fair and colder, with winds becoming strong. If it does grow cooler, the local street rail-ways lines are prepared for eventualities covering the rails anyhow.

Took Poison and Then Hanged Himself

of Undertakers J. P. O'Donnell & Sons in Market street, where it was viewed later by Medical Examiner T. B. Smith.

Surprenant was last seen alive last night at about 10 o'clock when he retired for the night. Indications in the room pointed to the fact that the man did not sleep at all and the fact that he was partly clothed when found hanging also substantiated that fact. Upon investigation, the police found that the life line in Surprenant's room had been removed from its hook back of the door and had been tied to the head, which had been removed to a point near the window in the alleyway. On a table in the room was found a solution of what is believed to be bichloride of mercury. A bottle containing green diamond shaded tablets marked with cross bones and a skull, was also found, and indications about the bed pointed to the fact that the man had drunk a quantity of the solution.

Surprenant who had been employed by McGauvran Bros. a great many years, had occupied room 16 at the Clifford house for the past ten years. He was regarded as a sober and industrious worker. Deponed has a brother residing in this city.

Judge Enright Says Officers
on Beats Should Assist
Liquor Squad

George Istros was fined $15 for illegal keeping by Judge Enright in the district court this morning. In making the finding, the court dwelt at length on the duty of officers on their beats to report any knowledge of illicit traffic in liquor, saying that failure to do so is gross neglect of duty. Hereafter, all regular officers will be instructed to inform the superintendent and the liquor squad of any suspicious establishments where liquor is being disposed of and thus lessen the duties of the members of the liquor squad.

Another complaint of illegal keeping preferred against Joseph Sullivan, brought a fine of $100, while similar charges against Alfred Pelquin and Josie Sarachik were continued until December 16, and for two months, respectively.

Lenz Brown was found guilty of being a lewd and wanton person and was sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory for women. She was found not guilty of larceny.

For operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, Edward Ginglestie was ordered to pay a fine of $100. A charge of drunkenness was placed on file.

Thomas Kelleher was given a three months' sentence to the house of correction for being drunk. Gay non support charge preferred later by his wife, the sentence for drunkenness was revoked and the same sentence for non support imposed. James P. Meaney, for non support of a minor child, was granted a continuance to Dec. 12.

Harry P. Brunelle pleaded not guilty to a complaint charging him with assault and battery on his wife, Mary A. After giving sound advice to both parties, the court ordered that Brunelle be placed in the care of the probation officer for one month.

THE SCHEMING CIRCLE

Souvenir Dinner and Dance in Auditorium Will Be Big Event

According to the plans the scheming circle of the Lowell Advertising club has mapped out, the souvenir dinner and dance which is to be held by the organization in the Memorial Auditorium on New Year's night, is to be one of the largest affairs of its kind ever attempted in the city.

Chairman Frank McPhee reported to the "circle" at its meeting last night, that plans were nearly complete for the affair and it was urged for them now only to pick up the loose ends. Tickets for the affair will go on sale to the members for 10 days after which the general public will be given an opportunity to take the remainder of the tickets.

More than 75 national manufacturers have already sent souvenirs or samples of their product to be distributed gratis to those who attend. In addition to this there will be about 250 other prizes to be given away.

The entertainment committee has arranged for a fine musical program and one, which in itself promises to be worth the price of admission. The full musical program will be announced at a later date, as will other innovations planned by the committee.

THE TWO AND ONE-HALF STORY TWO-TENESEMENT HOUSE AND STORE AND ABOUT THIRTY-SEVEN HUNDRED SQUARE FEET OF LAND AT NO. 48 WEST ADAMS STREET, LOWELL, MASS., IS HEREBY "PLEADED TO THE HIGHEST BONA FIDE BIDDERS AT UNRESTRICTED PUBLIC SALE ON NEXT SATURDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1922, AT THREE O'CLOCK P. M."

The premises consist of a full two and one-half story dwelling containing two tenements and store. The tenements have four rooms each, with toilet and bath. There are garages, closets, a kitchen and kitchen on the one floor in the upper flat, and the same plan on the lower flat, and electric lights in the lower tenement. The store fronts on the street and is conducted as a grocery and variety store, is electrically lighted and has separate toilet and city water. The building is in very good order and is fully rented. The tenements are paying fifteen and sixteen dollars each, respectively, and the store yielding sixteen dollars monthly, making a total rental of forty-seven dollars per month, or five hundred and sixty-four dollars yearly. The cellar is high posted and divided for each tenant. The building is equipped with front and side entrances and has a large open attic on the third story. The lot has a total area of thirty-seven hundred square feet of land with an unusual frontage on West Adams Street of fifty feet, and the building, located in a corner of the lot, gives a considerable open area for yard room. The location is most convenient and the neighborhood is comprised of homes and business establishments. The property is within a step of the new plant of the National Biscuit Company, the Lyon Carpet Company, the Saco-Lowell Foundry (formerly Pevee's Foundry) the Ilyl State Cotton Mills, and the plant formerly occupied by the Lameon Co., and within comfortable walking distance of many other manufacturing industries, and also being within easy walking distance of both the Broadway line of electric and the Middlesex Street-River Street line. There are many attractive and high grade residences within a short step of these premises, thus making the property unusually attractive as a location so convenient to industry and yet essentially in a home locality. The sale of the above premises is a most unusual opportunity, as the premises being of two tenements affords the owner a chance to occupy one of the flats and receive a net income of both the store and other tenement to pay the carrying charges of the entire property; and again, the owner, if he so chooses, could conduct the store business, live in one flat, and have a substantial income from the other side of the premises should directly appeal not only to the home seeker, but to the investor as well, as the premises, being entirely occupied and the store having an established business for a considerable period, assures the owner of steady and continued rental. Terms: $100.00 must be deposited with the auctioneer as soon as the property is struck off. Other terms to be made at the sale.

By order of JAMES J. STEPHENS.

MacDonald, senior vice commander; George McCarthy, junior vice commander; Joseph M. Dinneen, treasurer; Rev. William P. Mahan, O.M.I., chaplain; Thomas B. Higgins, historian.

contents for the office, all of the men having been nominated without opposition. The commander-elect, enlisted in the national guard at the outbreak of the world war, went to France and came back with the rank of captain. He was the winner of several medals for bravery. He succeeds Stephen C. Garity as head of the local post.

With the new quarters in the Veterans' quarters of the Memorial Auditorium available, and the organization on a solid foundation, the membership of the local post should be increased greatly within the next few months.

Last night's election was by ballot. The Australian system being used. The polls were opened at 7 o'clock and closed at 9 o'clock. The officers in charge of the election were Michael H. Harrington, George Whelan, Eugene Loupret, Arthur P. Moran and William D. Regan.

LIMIT BOXING SHOWS

DETROIT, Dec. 5.—Boxing shows in Detroit are to be limited to one each week, the licensed clubs alternating in staging the bouts under regulation made public today by the athletic division of the state department of public safety. The ruling was made to assure sufficient patronage for the various clubs and to avert cancellations of bouts because of failure to meet the boxers' guaranteed funds.
